

ALLIES PUSH STEADILY ON IN NORMANDY, DESPITE A DETERMINED RESISTANCE BY GERMANS; CAPTURE BY ALLIES OF STRATEGIC BAYEUX ROAD HUB ANNOUNCED

Heavy Tank Battle On One Part of Invasion Front

STREAMS OF PLANES

Keynote of Campaign, Successful Landing, Air-borne Formations

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 8—(INS)—Allied armies in Normandy, strengthened during the night by air-borne reinforcements—troops, anti-tank guns, motor transports and considerable other supplies—made steady progress inland today from secured beachheads on the coast of northern France.

Advances were made despite determined German resistance.

The communique announcing steady progress by the American, British and Canadian forces confirmed the Allied capture of the strategic road hub of Bayeux, and a headquarters spokesman said that its occupation is very good news since it opens up the possibility of an advance from that particular point.

Bayeux, on the main rail line linking the big port of Cherbourg with Paris, some 130 miles to the southeast, lies five miles inland from the Bay of the Seine.

Troops which took Bayeux cut the Bayeux-Caen highway at several points.

Allied forces which pressed inland engaged the Germans at different points in fierce fighting.

(A heavy tank battle is in progress on one sector of the French invasion front, according to a broadcast by a BBC correspondent reported by the Blue Network.

CALL FOR GREY LADIES

The Philadelphia hospitals are urgently calling for Grey Ladies, a call being issued through Bristol Board of the Red Cross. A concentrated training course is scheduled for two days, Monday, June 19, and Wednesday, June 21, from 10.15 a. m. to 3.30 p. m., at Chapter Headquarters, 511 North Broad street, Philadelphia. Women between the ages of 21 to 55, who have one day a week available, are asked to give it to this worthwhile service. Registration at chapter headquarters for prospective Grey Ladies will close on June 12th.

WINS COMPETITION

William Duffy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Duffy, Pine street, captured the crew of Northeast Catholic High School, for Boys, Philadelphia, last week, when said crew won the cup in competition with the Philadelphia Roman Catholic High School, last week. Duffy was awarded a medal. The affair took place on the Schuylkill River, and Mr. and Mrs. Duffy and daughter, Mary, attended.

TO HAVE VISITATION

State and national officers will visit the Daughters of America in F. P. A. hall tomorrow evening. The program will open at 8.15. All local officers are requested to wear white.

THE WAR AT A GLANCE

(By International News Service)

Anglo-American forces made steady progress inland from beachheads secured on the coast of Normandy, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced today, revealing also that contact is being established between seaborne and airborne troops which landed deep inland in Northern France.

Gen. Eisenhower's communique said fierce armored and infantry fighting raged, with the Germans organizing to combat the invasion forces which already had captured their first Norman town and severed a vital coastwise highway.

Generally heavy fighting flared at many points after the Allies captured the town of Bayeux, five miles inland from the bay of the Seine. In addition to capturing the town, the invading forces in several places severed the main highway between Bayeux and Caen, 15 miles to the southeast.

Moreover, the main rail line linking the port of Cherbourg with Paris runs through Bayeux, fall of which must greatly weaken the position of the enemy garrison within that important channel port.

Headquarters also reported that landing of more allied reinforcements continued during the night, air-borne reserves being flown in under cover of darkness. While the strengthening operations proceeded, heavy British bombers smashed key Nazi positions in the battle area.

More than 9,000 sorties were flown in tactical support of the land and naval forces, and 120 enemy planes were destroyed by the allied airmen yesterday.

BRISTOL MAN DID "D" DAY RESCUE WORK

Leonard Herman, C. M. M., Back at English Port For Brief Respite

ON CHANNEL 40 HOURS

A Bristol coast guardsman, Chief Machinists Mate Leonard Herman, is back at an English port for a short respite following 40 hours of invasion activity in the English Channel.

Herman, 27, is one of a trio of men from this section of the country who are crew members of a tiny Coast Guard cutter which was kept busy as part of a rescue flotilla during "D" day.

"D" day for them, as for millions of others was a long one, but one which marked what the Allies vow will be the "beginning of the end" of Nazi rule.

Herman is the husband of Nan Townsend Herman, of Mansion St., and son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Herman, of Wood street. He has been in the service for 2½ years.

The officers from the Philadelphia area who with the Bristolian were kept busy in the channel during the initial part of the invasion are George B. Walton, Boatswain's Mate 1/c, of St. Davids; and Peter Marshall, of Beach Haven, N. J.

Herman who was employed by Sears, Roebuck Co. before entering the Coast Guard service, was a former star football player at Bristol high school.

Strategic Mokmer Field Captured By Allies

WASHINGTON, June 8—(INS)—A vital doorway leading toward the Philippines and the Dutch East Indies swung open today with the capture by Allied forces of the strategic Mokmer airfield on Blak Island off the northwestern coast of New Guinea.

Meanwhile Japanese cargo vessels sought to move supplies and possibly reinforcements into the Truk area apparently in preparation for new American thrusts through the mandated islands.

Capture of Mokmer airfield after an eleven-day struggle was announced by Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his seizure brought potential Allied air forces within 880 miles of Japanese positions in the southern Philippines.

Rites Are Conducted For Rev. Fr. P. J. Brennan

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, June 8—Funeral was held yesterday for the Rev. Fr. Patrick J. Brennan, C. S. S. P., who died at Bay City, Mich., on Friday. Solemn Requiem Mass was said in Holy Ghost College, with nuptial taking place on the college burial grounds.

The late priest, who had been stationed some years ago at the local college, served as assistant rector of St. Joseph's Church, Bay City, Mich., for three years. A native of Ireland he was educated here, and ordained at Norwalk, Conn., in 1925. He had also served at St. Peter Claver Church and Our Lady of Blessed Sacrament Church, Philadelphia.

Survivors are three sisters and three brothers, Mrs. Mary Walsh, Mrs. Ellen Gallagher, Philadelphia; Mrs. Katherine Smyth, New York, N. Y.; John, Michael and Mark Brennan, of Philadelphia.

The W. I. Murphy Est., funeral directors, had charge of the burial.

Republican Women Are Planning Card Party

The June meeting of The Lower Bucks County Council of Republican Women will take on the form of a card party in place of its usual trend. This party will be held in the Travel Club home on the evening of Tuesday, June 13th, at eight o'clock.

Members and friends of council, and all others who plan to attend, anticipate a pleasant evening as the well organized committees will award prizes and serve refreshments.

WAR STAMP DAY

The Bristol Girl Scouts will sell war stamps throughout Bristol tomorrow. This will enable everyone to get stamps to finish the books which are lying around gathering no interest. All books should be filled so that they can be converted into bonds during the fifth war loan drive which starts Monday, June 12th, state the drive leaders.

CIVIL SERVICE

The local civil service office has received a request to fill a vacancy for the position of procurement inspector (aircraft) at $2390 per annum, plus overtime. Requirement for this position is one year's experience in the inspection of aircraft. The necessary form for application for this position may be made at the Bristol post office.

Hear How Railroads Are Aiding War Effort

ANDALUSIA, June 8—A. B. Cole, of Jersey City, N. J., representing the Association of American Railroads, addressed Bensalem Railroads Tuesday evening in King Hall, following dinner. Mr. Cole was accompanied by Theodore Rhinehart, of Newark, N. J., also representing the same association. Elmer B. Vansant presided.

Mr. Cole told of the work the railroads are doing under the stress of war, and the importance to the Allied cause of such type of transportation. He gave it as his opinion that the reliance of Hitler upon highways rather than upon railroads for his transportation needs in Europe will contribute greatly to his downfall "as the railroads have proven to be the most dependable means of transportation. Nothing can move huge groups of men as can the railroads," he added as he told of unprecedented demands made on such during the present war. Mr. Cole informed that more people and material have been handled during this war, with comparatively less equipment, than at any time in the country's history. He attributed the ability to the fact that the locomotives are more powerful and other equipment better. Statistics were given to show how work of the railroads has been "stepped up" since World War I.

A visitor at the meeting was George Ardrey, of Bristol.

Offices not previously filled were cared for Tuesday. Harold H. Haefner was named vice president; Phillip G. Mack and Rhetner Tomlinson, directors; and Charles V. Wenner, treasurer.

May "Streamline" U. S. Military Establishments

WASHINGTON, June 8—(INS)—The Army and Navy, it was disclosed today, have established a joint committee to consider "streamlining" the nation's military establishments by merger of the two fighting forces and creation of a separate Department of Air.

This disclosure was made public by the House Committee on Post-war Military Policy in a printed report by Rep. Woodrum (D), Va., chairman of the Congressional group studying consolidation of the two services.

The order was contained in a directive by the joint chiefs of staff which also revealed previous reports made separately by Army and Navy members of a special investigating committee showing "widely divergent views and inability to agree."

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

Allied Forces Link for Joint Drive Inland

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force—Allied forces which landed in overwhelming strength on the beaches of Normandy linked up with air-borne units dropped deep into the interior of France today and launched a joint inland against stiffening German resistance.

A German announcement meanwhile admitted "small local gains" by American troops northeast of Treveries, a town between Bayeux and Carentan, lying on a secondary road paralleling the coast.

"Troops Performing Magnificently," Says Eisenhower

Supreme Headquarters Advanced Command Post—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced today that "my complete confidence in the ability of the Allied armies has been completely justified."

"In the early landing operations," the invasion commander said, "the two Allied navies excelled any prior adventure in which I have seen them engaged." "All troops engaged in the gigantic operation, the commander-in-chief said, "are performing magnificently."

Large-Scale German Counter-Attack Taking Shape

Headquarters, Ninth Air Force Tactical Command—A large-scale German counterattack against Allied-occupied areas in northern France began taking shape today.

Ninth Air Force pilots reporting to headquarters after attacks on German concentrations and other targets in the invasion area confirmed the enemy movements.

"Golden Arrow" Halted by Fire

Philadelphia—An oil-grease fire in the understructure of the locomotive today halted the Chicago-bound Pennsylvania Railroad train. "The Golden Arrow" for 14 minutes at Frankford Junction. The flames broke out less than 100 feet from the point where the Congressional Limited, crack PRR streamliner, was wrecked last Labor Day, killing 79 persons. The engineers told authorities that when the train automatically jolted to a stop, he found thick, acrid smoke pouring from the understructure. Philadelphia firemen extinguished the blaze with chemicals.

REFUSE TO ADMIT TO DOYLESTOWN SCHOOLS THOSE IN ARREARS IN PAYMENT OF TUITION

DOYLESTOWN, June 8—Children whose parents have not paid their tuition at the Doylestown schools during the past year will not be enrolled for the coming year until the arrears are paid, according to the action taken by the school board this week.

The decision was taken at the request of Supervising Principal J. Leonard Halderman, who reported that there are several cases where he could get no response to his demand for the tuition for the past year.

The board approved the opening of a summer school at which five-possibly, six teachers will be employed. Only those students who deserve to be given the opportunity for the additional instruction to make up for failure to be promoted will be allowed to attend the sessions. The dates and duration of the summer school will be announced in the near future.

The board received a committee composed of Edward G. Biester and Dr. C. Louis Siegler from the Burpee Memorial Playgrounds commission, who requested a donation from the board for the operating and maintenance fund of the playgrounds. Last year the board gave $250 to the commission and the committee asked that the amount be doubled this year. This the board decided to grant, with the understanding, however, that this amount shall not be considered as a basis for a similar amount in the future. The donation will be divided into two payments, $250 to be given this month and a similar amount in August.

The supervising principal reported that 136 freshmen were registered and their courses arranged on "Freshman Day," May 19. This number is about 40 less than the average number in the freshman class each year, but will probably be increased to some extent at the Fall registration. Principal Halderman stated that he did not expect, however, that the class would be as large as usual.

School will open for the 1944-45 school year on Wednesday, September 6, 1944, and will close on Friday, June 15, 1945, according to the calendar submitted by Principal Halderman and adopted by the board. The year will have 190 days of school, providing for two days closing for Schoolmen's week instead of the usual one day, so that the teachers may be able to attend the day having the program best suited for their work.

The board appropriated $50 to pay for taking the school children census during the summer.

Three of the teachers, Luther K. Boyer, Earl J. Frick and Clyde Klingner, who have been called by the draft board, have been deferred by that board from induction into the armed service until November, 1944.

The board allowed $200 for the expense of caring for the new school property and the preparing of an additional tennis court on the athletic field at the site on W. Court street.

CITIZENS' DEFENSE ASSOCIATION MEETS

Walter Gillette Reports $187.72 Cleared At Recent Auction

TO AID BOND DRIVE

NEWPORT TERRACE, June 8—President Walter Gillette reported at the meeting of the Citizens Defense Association, held Monday evening, that $187.72 had been realized at the recent auction. Mr. Gillette said the community had wholeheartedly supported the affair and that he was pleased with the effort put forth by both workers and donors.

A question of what to do with clothing in excellent condition, left from the sale was considered. It was decided to send the garments to Christ Home, Warminster.

Mr. Gillette urged members to give their support to the 5th War Loan drive, and plans were discussed for stimulating the sale of bonds in the community.

Ottsville Man Finds Purse Containing $169

OTTSTVILLE, June 8—Diogenes, according to Ernest Foellner, a well-known farmer of Ottsville, could never have found a man whose honesty surpasses the honesty of Nicholas Buck. And his uncanny ability to find lost articles causes his friends amazement.

While preparing to plant corn recently, Mr. Foellner lost a wallet containing $139, and he walked through the field several times, but failed to find the wallet.

Mr. Buck was painting at the Foellner home at the time, and he was told of the loss. Mr. Buck offered to take up the search, and after supper several evenings later the painter took out time to look for the missing wallet. In less than ten minutes the painter was back at the Foellner home with wallet and its contents.

This, according to Mr. Foellner, is not the first time Mr. Buck has found wallets and returned them to their owners intact.

Several years ago he found a wallet containing more than $700 and on another occasion he found another containing a large sum on the Easton highway. Both wallets, with their contents intact, were returned to their rightful owners.

BACK TO CAMP

Cpl. James E. Riley has returned to Camp Davis, N. C., after spending 10 days with his wife and son on Bath Road.

Would Rather Argue With "Cops" Than Eat

DOYLESTOWN, June 8—John Leary would rather argue with cops than eat, even though he's 69. He challenges them regardless of size, when he's drunk.

Leary, who lives in Doylestown Township when he's out of jail, is establishing a record for the Bucks County Prison for serving time for summary convictions.

In 1942 he served a total of 209 days; in 1943 he slipped to 180 days, but he's ambitious again since he got out three days ago after serving his 60th day in 1944. He's back in on a 30-day sentence imposed yesterday by Justice of the Peace William Wrigley, of Edison, for being drunk and disorderly.

BOLTON-PIERCY

CROYDON, June 7—Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Piercy announce the marriage of their daughter, May A., to Cpl. James Leighton Bolton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bolton, Bristol, on May 27th. The ceremony took place in the post chapel, Parris Island, S. C., with Chaplain Novak, U. S. N., officiating.

PLAN PICNIC SUPPER

The final meeting for the summer of the Junior Travel Club will be held this evening at 6.30 at the club home. A picnic supper is planned, and a business meeting will follow.

Hunter Firm Building Ignites 2nd and 3rd Time

For the second and third time in less than 36 hours one of the small buildings at the Bath Road plant of Hunter Manufacturing Corp. caught fire last evening.

The alarms were received by fire companies in Bristol at seven and 11.15 o'clock last night. Bristol Consolidated Co., and volunteer companies Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 6 responded to the alarms but did not get into action, they being informed upon arrival at the plant that the fires were extinguished.

On Tuesday afternoon the one-story frame structure was damaged at one end; and in the two subsequent fires last evening, it is stated the additional damage was slight. Workers were unharmed, it is said.

Wilbur Stetson Reads Essay Which Won Mothers' Ass'n Prize

AT COMMENCEMENT

"Why Are We Americans Different?" was the title of the essay which won for Wilbur Stetson, member of the class of 1944, Bristol high school, the Mothers' Association prize. The essay, which Stetson read at commencement exercises on Tuesday evening, follows:

Why Are We Americans Different? Why are we Americans different? There are a number of contributing factors causing this marked difference between an American and a citizen of any other country in the world. Perhaps the most important is that the American is a mixture or a new alloy or compound of the characteristics of many races and nationalities. For example, can we avoid being affected by the British love of freedom, when such a large percentage of our people are English in their ancestry? In like manner, have we not been influenced by the Italian's love of laughter, the thrift of the Scotch and Scandinavian people, the industry and frugality of the Teutonic or Germanic races and the Central European's love of art and knowledge? Just as certainly as the tides of the ocean are affected by the moon and the growth of young flowers by the rain and sun. While people of other nations possess only two or three of these qualities, the typical American is a composite of all and is, of course, different from the others.

30% Traffic Increase Noticed On Turnpike

HARRISBURG, June 8—(INS)—A 30% increase in passenger car travel on the $71,000,000 Harrisburg to Pittsburg super-highway during the first four months of this year was reported today by the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission.

A spokesman disclosed that 135,936 automobiles used the express highway during the January-March period, compared with 141,962 in the corresponding months last year.

Truck traffic, however, dropped from 99,437 last year to 93,863 during the same period in 1944, he added.

Relaxed restrictions on gasoline were credited by the spokesman with the passenger car increase, but he emphasized "there were practically no pleasure drivers."

Passenger car traffic in 1943 totaled 785,000, a 67% decline over 1942, the spokesman reported.

Miss Lillian Snyder Dies at Langhorne

LANGHORNE, June 8—Miss Lillian Snyder died at her home Tuesday evening at the age of 46 years.

Miss Snyder's survivors are her mother, Mrs. Ida Snyder; and two sisters, Mrs. Ezekial Tomlinson, Langhorne; Mrs. George Hackett, of Yardley.

The nephews of the deceased will serve as bearers at the funeral on Friday. Service will be held at the late home of the deceased at 2.30 o'clock, the Rev. Charles Yrigoyen, pastor of Langhorne Methodist Church, officiating. Burial in the Methodist churchyard will be in charge of R. L. Horner, funeral director. The deceased was a member of the Langhorne Methodist Church.

Jacob Kutschera Dies Following An Operation

A resident of Bristol for the past 10 years died yesterday in Abington Hospital following an operation. He is Jacob Kutschera, 55, husband of Anne Kutschera. The deceased resided at 1613 Wilson avenue.

He is also survived by two sons, Jacob, Jr., and John Joseph.

Mr. Kutschera was employed by Rohm & Haas Chemical Co.

The late Mr. Kutschera was a member of Rohm & Haas social club, Bristol; the United German-Hungarians of Philadelphia; and the German-Hungarian Business Men's Association of Philadelphia.

The service will be conducted on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at a funeral home, 1532 N. 4th street, Philadelphia. Burial will be in Northwood Cemetery, that city, and friends may call on Friday evening.

RECEIVES TWO PRIZES

ALLENTOWN, June 8—Miss Lillian Gilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Gilton, Bristol, who was graduated with a bachelor of arts degree this week, was the recipient of two prizes offered by the St-On-Ja Language Club for her high scholastic achievement in the advanced work both in the department of Spanish and the department of French. Miss Gilton was also named as one of the eight honor graduates of the 62 members of the senior class.

MANPOWER ORDER

Order by the War Manpower Commission, by which it assumes absolute control of all male labor over 17 years of age, beginning July 1, was issued at an unfortunate time. The Governors' Conference had adjourned at Hershey, Pa., the day before, after giving Federal bureaucracy a verbal shelling such as it never had received before.

And the order followed by only two days government action in ordering the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation to retain thousands of workers on the payroll who had been laid off because their services were made unnecessary by cancellation of Navy contracts. This move by the government followed sit-down strikes of Brewster employees who, by the thousands, refused to leave the plants unless they were assured they would be kept on the payroll.

In California, a large airplane manufacturing company has announced that 8,000 employees will be laid off gradually as contracts are terminated. And Senator McCarran, of Nevada, making campaign speeches in his home state recently, boasted that the War Production Board had been persuaded by him not to cut production of magnesium at the $135,000,000 plant at Las Vegas, Nev., by 50 per cent, as had been contemplated.

To the average layman—which means a taxpayer who is not included among the 3,200,000 civilians now on the Federal payroll—the order of the Manpower Commission which makes it impossible for any male over 17 years of age to change jobs, or for any employer to hire a male employee except with the permission, consent, etc., of the United States Employment Service, does not make sense. To the thousands of employees of the United States Employment Service this move, no doubt, will seem like a great improvement on the manner of seeking jobs or employees that has prevailed in this country since 1492.

HOW STRONG?

Among German prisoners taken by the Allies are many who are 16 years old and many who are more than 40. On some days no Nazi planes whatever rise to challenge the Allied air invaders and on any day the enemy planes are hopelessly outnumbered. Three-fourths of Germany's natural oil resources are gone and synthetic oil plants are shattered.

Just how strong is Germany today? Is that nation, which overran Europe and seemed for a time to be in position to take in Asia and Africa as well, now an empty shell exhausted by its own stupendous effort and gutted by the growing firepower of surrounding hostile nations which are confining it into an ever narrowing area?

Probably no one knows the real situation any more than it was known in the spring of 1918 that Germany was within five or six months of surrender. Basically, Germany's situation is much worse today than it was then.

"Out with it, I'm all ears!" "All right, Clark—if I may call you that—lend ears! It was like this," She took a deep breath. "I was posing at the Wilton pool for an ad. I'd noticed that sallow-complexioned Lucky Gambini following me from my apartment to the Wilton Hotel. He hung around the visitors' gallery watching us take pictures and I began to get scared. I remembered Inspector Grange had said that Cynthia Lane had been shot with a gun that once belonged to Lucky. Well, anyway, I decided to phone you. I threw a coat over my shoulders and went upstairs to the phones. I was talking to Butch when I heard someone behind me. I turned. It was Lucky. He said for me to come with him quietly, that Dancer already had you in the car and, if I behaved, everything would be all right."

"He skunk!" "I was pretty scared, but I didn't know what to do. So I hung up and followed him out around the corner on 50th Street. Of course, you weren't in the car. They bandaged my eyes and made me sit on the floor of the car, and we drove and drove and drove. Finally we stopped and they led me up some steps and inside a house. They tied me to a chair and then took the bandage off my eyes. Remember I had on nothing but a coat and a bathing suit. The rope cut into my arms and legs. Look!" Ellen showed Argus the chafed marks.

"Poor baby!" He bent over and kissed her arm tenderly.

"The place they took me looked no different from any average house in the country. The room I was in was the kitchen."

"How many men were there?" "There must've been three. The one who drove the car, Lucky, and the one who tied me up."

"Was Dancer there?" "Yes, Martineau was out at the house when we got there. He told Lucky to leave and left the other one in charge. He was apologetic about the whole thing and said if it hadn't been for your snooping around in business that didn't concern you, he wouldn't have had to do it."

"How'd you get away?" "Dancer left the other man in the kitchen. And this is where the funny part comes in." Ellen laughed at the recollection. "If I hadn't been so scared I might have been more amused at the time. The man who was left to guard me got hungry. So he took down some cans from the shelf and tried to open them. He cut himself with the can opener and that apparently led him to try another and more unique method. He tried to shoot the tops off with his gun. Mind you! Firing bullets into an innocent little can of pork and beans!" Ellen took a deep breath.

"I started laughing," she went on, "and he asked me what was so funny. I told him he was about as effective as most of the men I knew around a kitchen, and that he'd probably die of lead poisoning by the time he was ready to eat the

This Month's STAR RECIPE

J. BETTY BARCLAY

Bread is the staff of life; fruit is needed in our meals and we know eggs, milk and cereals are basic foods too. So we've combined them in this month's "Star" recipe. All these plus the necessary "toucher-uppers" make a fruit bread that will be popular, both for home and lunch box sandwiches. Try this recipe and see how your breakfast cereal may be used to make dishes for any meal.

Fruit Bread

2 cups milk, scalded
1 cup Grape-Nuts
3 cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
3 tablespoons melted butter or other shortening
1 cup finely cut prunes or raisins
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
Pour milk over Grape-Nuts; cool. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and sugar, and sift again. Add egg, shortening, fruit and rind to Grape-Nuts mixture and stir well; add flour mixture, stirring only enough to dampen all flour. Turn into greased loaf pan, 9 x 5 x 3 inches; let stand 20 minutes. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 1 hour and 25 minutes, or until done. Wrap in damp cloth and store several hours or overnight before slicing.

David John Griswold, 41, 19 Assumpink street, and Bessie Mallard, 38, 288 N. Clinton street, both of Trenton, N. J.

Richard Arthur Green, 33, 331 Stockham street, Morrisville, and Josephine Holcombe Patterson, 33, New Hope.

WEAKENS AT END

Croasdale, Losing Hurler,
Is Hit Quite
Freely

The losing streak of the Rohm and Haas team reached twelve last evening as the Case Packers handed the chemical workers a 9-6 defeat on the Maple Beach diamond.

The local team weakened in the closing innings to give the Packers the victory as going into the fifth, the chemical mixers were ahead, 5-3. The Casemen picked up a pair of tallies in the fifth and then scored three more in the seventh to be assured of victory.

Jesse Croasdale was the losing hurler, he being hit quite freely, the Trenton team having a total of sixteen safe blows. Croasdale was also generous with his passes as he issued six. Jack Dearoff who pitched for the Packers also was hit with ease but was tighter in the pinches.

Of the winners' sixteen hits, four went to Risoldi who also counted four runs. On his fifth appearance at the plate, Risoldi reached base on an error. Evon and Bentley each had a trio of safe blows. For Rohm and Haas, Johnny Dick connected for three safe blows in four tries.

Ferdinand Lieke, Haycock township RD 3, was granted a divorce from Dorothy Lieke, 1233 Landham avenue, Camden, N. J., on grounds of desertion. They were married June 11, 1921.

The opinion of Judge Harold Knight of the Montgomery county court, specially presiding in the case of Joseph Howe, Doylestown, against the Doylestown Fair Association, Doylestown Agricultural and Livestock Improvement Association and the Bucks County Fish, Game and Forestry Association, was handed down today.

Judge Knight directed that a rule to join additional defendants in the case—Charles W. Rowe, Earl D. Blair and J. Allen Gardy, all of Doylestown—be discharged at the cost of the plaintiff.

In the trial of the case in 1942, a jury rendered a verdict for $1625 in civil court to Howe, for injuries sustained at the fair grounds where Howe was accidentally shot by a bullet fired in the rifle range maintained by the defendants. After the trial, Howe filed a rule to show cause why the additional three persons should not be joined as defendants.

Dr. Harry Yutzler will be in charge of research, and J. S. Neidig, supervising principal of Quakertown schools, will be in charge of public relations. Robert Shafer will assist these men in making the survey in the northeastern section of this area.

Churchill Williams, the County C. E. D. vice-chairman, has resigned because his recent illness will not permit him to take on additional responsibilities. The Brewster crisis at Johnsville has stimulated the organization of C. E. D. committees in all county areas. J. M. Coles, vice-president of the Cold Spring Bleachery, has completed the organization for the Morrisville-Yardley area. Herbert Walker and Wallace Murfit expect to announce the organization for the Langhorne-Newtown area in a very short time.

Gordon Fromm, superintendent of Manhattan Soap Co., Bristol, plans to organize a committee for the Bristol-Bensalem area; Charles Beatty, the District Manager of the Bell Telephone Co., for the Doylestown area; and Frank O'Rourke, superintendent of the water company, the Sellersville-Perkasie area.

Allies Push Steadily On in Normandy Despite Resistance by The Germans

("I won't know the outcome of the battle until I return to that area in a few hours," he said, "but as I came back to this farm house I passed a steady stream of British armor moving up to the front.")

Headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, emphasizing the importance of aerial operations, said that the keynote of the campaign in France to date has been the successful landing of airborne formations.

Bomber and fighter plane formations added their weight to the continued success of the operations, lashing out constantly at enemy troop concentrations, strong-points and communications lines to disrupt German attempts to bring up reinforcements.

A heavy bombardment of German troop concentrations in a woods behind the beaches last night by British bombers was carried out in response to urgent appeals from ground forces, headquarters said.

Lanes across the English Channel were considerably widened to aid the movement of water-borne forces into the battle area. Minesweepers worked steadily to widen the Channel paths.

The Allied plan to maintain a constant flow of men and supplies into the battle sectors was aided by a welcome improvement in the weather which seriously hampered these operations at one point.

Headquarters revealed that the poor weather at one time yesterday became so bad that it stopped unloading on the beaches. The lost time, however, now has been regained by "super-human efforts."

Weather on the beaches now is definitely improving said a spokesman who expressed confidence that the Allies will be able to get on with the job according to schedule. Some battleships which had been out in the Channel bombarding Nazi coastal positions returned with other craft to England to get more ammunition and now are back in operation.

Wounded being brought back to England are in very high spirits, headquarters said.

Election of officers and an interesting and informative talk on the preparation and freezing of food were the highlights at the meeting of the Upper Makefield Liberty Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Kirkbride, Makefield, last week.

Results of the election were as follows: President, Robert T. Ely; vice president, Lawrence M. Russell; secretary, Mrs. William C. Kirkbride; and treasurer, Otis Long. The talk on the preparation and freezing of food was given by the county home economics representative, Mrs. Mary Jacoby Fleetham, Doylestown, who emphasized the importance of speed in the preparation and freezing of all food.

Maxwell Cochran, 56, who was seriously injured in an automobile collision at the intersection of the Danboro-Carversville and the Gardenville-Point Pleasant highways, died on Monday in the Doylestown Emergency Hospital.

Cochran, a resident of Smith's Corner, near Point Pleasant, was injured when his car collided with a car driven by Johnson Stothoff, of Flemington, N. J., who was proceeding east on the Gardenville-Point Pleasant road. Cochran was driving north on the Danboro-Carversville road.

Stothoff will be charged with involuntary manslaughter.

Miss Edith Marie Deigendesch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Deigendesch, of Southampton, became the bride, a few days ago, of Boatswain's Mate 1/c Norman Heath Lobb, Jr., of the U. S. Coast Guard Reserve, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lobb, Sr., Oakmont, Delaware county.

The ceremony, performed in the presence of a few relatives and friends, took place in the chapel of Cathedral Church of the New Jerusalem, Bryn Athyn, with Rev. Karl R. Alden, pastor of the church, officiating.

attempts were made by German E-boats to interfere with the continual arrival of allied supplies in Northern France.

In Italy, the Fifth Army advance continued at breath-taking speed. An official headquarters communique announced that Lieut. General Mark W. Clark's force has captured the Tyrrhenian seaport of Civitavecchia, some 40 miles northwest of liberated Rome.

As the Fifth Army troops raced north to take the Eternal City's main port, another column of the allied force reached the town of Bracciano on the shores of the lake of the same name. Still other troops fanned out north toward Civita Castellana.

The fall of Civitavecchia was announced after the German radio had conceded that the Fifth Army scored a serious breakthrough west and north of Rome, where the Nazis retreated hurriedly under assault by allied aircraft.

Further inland, in the mountains east of Rome, the British Eighth Army captured Subiaco and Mount Rotondo.

making Americans outstanding in the history and traditions of this country. What other nation can boast of such a Declaration of Independence, or overthrow of tyranny and establishment of a Constitution and form of government which have served so long and so well? Rare indeed are such men as George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, Abraham Lincoln, and "Teddy" Roosevelt, yet America has had, and still has, many such great men.

An American is different because he has opportunities for advancement which no other people have. In no other country on the face of this globe could a person be born so low and yet rise so high as did George Washington Carver. Born the son of a Negro slave, Carver, through his own efforts, became one of the most famous and well-liked scientists in the world. The income from his hundreds of patents goes to further the education and health of the people of his race. Another example of the heights to which an American may rise, is Andrew Carnegie. Carnegie came to this country at the age of sixteen, a Scotch immigrant. Although he started as a laborer in a steel mill, he climbed the ladder of success until he was a multi-millionaire and the benefactor of thousands of people through his gifts of libraries, hospitals and other philanthropic institutions.

A fourth cause for the uniqueness of us Americans is our educational and industrial system. In the U. S. A., every boy and girl is given the opportunity to obtain a high school education free, if he so desires it. In America, the vast majority of students do not have to leave school and work in some sweat shop. In fact, most states have child labor laws which prevent that very thing. As for industry, nearly every family in America has electric lights, a radio, and a car. These and many more advantages given us by our scientists and industrial geniuses, have naturally caused us to have a high degree of freedom from back-breaking labor and drudgery. This lack of drudgery had caused the American woman, in particular, to have a better education and more leisure time than is thought possible in other countries.

Then too, there are the countless small things which set an American apart. Washing machines, electric irons, kitchen gadgets galore, the thousands of clubs and fraternal organizations, the movies, the soda fountain—all contribute to our American way.

In conclusion, as I see it, an American is different because he is a composite of many nationalities, his history and traditions are unparalleled, his opportunities for education and self-betterment are unequalled, his religious and political freedom are the envy of the world, because he is a hard working, clean living person, and, above all, because he is an American!

22 of Bristol Flight Attend Mobilization

The Bristol Flight sent 22 members to participate in the Civil Air Patrol Mobilization at Ambler, on Sunday. The convoy was in charge of PFC Stephen Cassidy, of Fleetwings, Inc., and Pvt. Andrew Budabazy, of Fallsington, and reported to Captain Dom Rose, of Squadron 14, Philadelphia.

Lieut. Marty Green, C. O. of Bristol Flight, with PFC Dougherty as navigator, flew his Stinson from Allentown to Wings Field, where he flew his entire squad on orientation flights. Other commanders used Army "L" ships for their groups. In all there were about 500 CAP Cadets flown.

In speaking to the assembly

Lieut. Parsons, of the Army Air Forces, stated that recruiting for the Air Forces is again open as of June 1st, and the only way in is through the enlisted reserves. Any boy over 17 years and under 17 years, nine months, may take the mental screening test at Bristol high school on June 14th at 9:30 a. m., to be given by Lieut. Marty Green, leaving only the medical test to be taken at Philadelphia.

Among new applicants to Civil Air Patrol was Dr. Philip Tulin, Washington street, formerly a captain and medical officer in the U. S. Army Air Forces until January, 1944. Dr. Tulin will assume the duties of medical officer in this unit.

For next Monday's feature, Flight Sgt. James Patterson, Croydon, who has returned from England and has completed 45 missions as a radio operator on the bomber "round trip," will speak to the group at Bristol high school. Sgt. Patterson has many decorations, including six oak leaf clusters and three silver stars.

Soroptimists of Bucks County Install Officers

DOYLESTOWN, June 8 — The newly elected officers of the Soroptimist Club of Bucks County were installed at the meeting, Tuesday evening, by Gale Zell, regional director of the North Atlantic District. Those installed are: Dorothy Kraft, president; Pearl H. Smith, vice-president; Agnes Maguire, recording secretary; Alice Watson, corresponding secretary; Marie V. Welsh, treasurer, and Verna McClary, director.

Verna McClary, retiring president, reported on the work of the club during the past year and a half, including the installation of the new club at Trenton, N. J. She presented the president's pin to the new president. The past president's pin was presented to Miss McClary by Miss Grace Chandler.

The guest speaker was Martha Service, executive secretary of the American Federation of Soroptimist

SAY NAZI TROOPS ARE LOW IN MORALE

Observers On Continent
Report Desertions Are
Increasing in Army

TRY TO BOLSTER IT

By William W. Wade
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, June 8.—(INS).—The German soldier, the enemy whom American and British troops are facing across the English Channel, today has degenerated to a shadow of the arrogant, jack-booted Nazi who made Europe tremble in 1940 and 1941.

The German GI still may be a well-equipped, well-trained fighting man who can and will battle hard but, according to the latest reports from the continent, there is something missing—that spark of confidence known as morale and esprit de corps.

Some units of the Wehrmacht are good; some are not; and it will be an added job of Hitler's anti-invasion chiefs to juggle troop concentrations so that the best men can attempt to stave off the Allied blows.

Desertions, slackness and lack of hope have increased fourfold in the last two years among the Nazi garrisons from Norway to Yugoslavia. How seriously German leaders have taken the slump in morale can be seen by the fact that they had set up a special broadcasting transmitter to feed propaganda to the troops on the West Wall.

This radio, situated somewhere in France, has been pouring out exhortations on the theme that 1918 must not be repeated. As a backhanded morale-builder, it has been attempting to instill a dread of defeat into the Nazi supermen.

Significantly, this radio recently accused the Allies of a rumor campaign directed at German soldiers and threatened troops who passed on such rumors with severe punishment.

This propaganda campaign coincided with reports from Europe that morale in the Wehrmacht is low in certain sections of France. Desertions in the Marseilles area are said to be numerous.

Reflecting a serious shortage of German commissioned and non-commissioned officers, the German newspaper, Berliner Boersen Zeitung, recently published new regulations for "the intensified recruiting of young officers and NCOs to replace those killed on active service."

Swedish dispatches state that Germans already were talking about their "ersatz army" before the latest drive came into effect.

Probably the center of lowest morale of the Wehrmacht lies among the garrisons of Scandinavia. Those troops in Finland, an isolated seven divisions, face internment if the Finns successfully extricate themselves from the war.

Reports from Stockholm tell of hundreds of German deserters who reached neutral Sweden from Denmark, and it is safely assumed that for each soldier who escaped there are dozens more who failed and scores more who have not dared to try.

Deserters from the Norwegian garrison have been even more numerous. And according to the accounts, these fugitives of the Wehrmacht give of themselves, the rot of despair has settled heavily among the Nazi camps in the fjords.

One deserter, who reached Sweden recently, described the discipline of the comrades he left behind in this way:

"The ordinary German soldier has not the opportunity to express his mind except through his immediate superior officer. Therefore, the German soldier is easily suppressed and isolated. Discipline is still strong in the army but it is ingrained discipline.

"German soldiers are not heroes and, like most soldiers, they are afraid but they do not know what would happen if they did not obey their officers.

"They are bewildered by the setbacks in Russia. They take orders unquestionably and fight because they must. They fear for their families, who they know are being bombed in Germany but even that won't make them refuse to obey German army discipline.

"It was not until after Stalingrad that the German people and the German army for the first time realized that not all the things Hitler had promised could be fulfilled. It was also after Stalingrad that the German people first felt the power of the Gestapo at first hand. When I went home on leave after Stalingrad, I found my relatives and friends scared about talking too much."

Stalingrad recurs and recurs in the stories that seep out of the Third Reich as the turning point of morale, both civilian and military. Since then, defeat after defeat has hit the vaunted panzers and an unending cascade of bombs have shattered German cities.

No one quite knows what the blow from the West will do to the German will to resist.

One thing is certain, Allied commanders are not counting on any presents from the intangible thing called Nazi esprit. They are only hoping that it will be one of a large number of factors which will spell defeat for Germany.

"Come For Dessert" Parties Happy Solution Of Rationed Hospitality

Because rationing and shortages make generous mealtime hospitality a bit of a problem sometimes, it's becoming more and more usual to invite friends for coffee and dessert.

At this time of year, strawberry shortcake is a gala dessert that ranks tops with most people and makes minimum demands on the sugar bank. You'll win a merit rating as a thoughtful hostess, if you co-star your dessert party shortcake with decaffeinated coffee, so that everybody can relax and cheer conversation. Remember that to bring out the rich coffee flavor you must percolate the decaffeinated variety from 15 to 18 minutes. You can serve the shortcake with a sauce of crushed, lightly sweetened berries, or you can achieve whipped cream for a topping by using a very simple recipe with thin cream and granulated gelatin.

There's an age-old controversy about the relative merits of biscuit crust and cake layers for the foundation of strawberry shortcake. Family taste will decide your choice. The cake variety takes a little more sugar. If you need only four servings, cut the two cake layers in half. Use two halves for the shortcake, and put the other two together with frosting for a half layer cake.

Mocha Froth

- 1 cup evaporated milk
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- Cinnamon
- 4 cups freshly made, hot decaffeinated coffee

Chill evaporated milk thoroughly. Then whip rapidly until stiff. Add vanilla. Place in serving cups, filling half full. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Fill cups with coffee. Makes 8 servings.

How to Whip Light Cream

- ¼ cup milk
- 1½ teaspoons (½ envelope) granulated gelatin
- 1 cup light cream

Few grains of salt. Add milk gradually to granulated gelatin in small bowl, mixing well. Heat over boiling water until gelatin is completely dissolved, stirring constantly. Remove from boiling water, add cream and salt, and mix. Place in bowl of ice and water and whip immediately with rotary egg beater 5 to 7 minutes, or until mixture begins to hold shape around side of bowl. Remove from ice water. Stir gently with spoon until smooth. Serve.

This whipped cream may be stored in refrigerator until needed. Mix thoroughly before using.

Orange Honey Bread

- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 1 cup honey
- 1 egg
- 1½ tablespoons grated orange peel
- 2½ cups sifted flour
- 2½ teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup orange juice
- ¾ cup chopped nuts

Cream shortening and honey together thoroughly. Add well beaten egg and grated orange peel. Sift flour with baking powder, soda and salt. Add the flour mixture to the creamed mixture alternately with the orange juice. Add the nuts. Bake in greased loaf pan in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) for 70 minutes. This makes an ideal school lunch when filled with cream cheese and orange marmalade.

KNOW YOUR STATE

Pennsylvania was a pioneer in the development of the American railroad. The first train ever drawn by a steam locomotive in the western hemisphere ran between Carlisle and Honesdale on the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company's railroad in 1829. Though this historic trip was never repeated, since the imported locomotive which drew that train proved too heavy for the light rails which had been laid along the route, it was, in fact, the beginning of the American railroad industry.

Only a few years before this historical trip John Stevens was granted, in 1823, a charter for the construction of a railroad from Philadelphia to Columbia, Pennsylvania. So great was the public ignorance as to this method of transportation that a reader of a Pennsylvania newspaper wrote a letter to the editor inquiring, "What is a railroad?" and the editor, at a loss himself, could only reply, "Perhaps some other correspondent can tell."

In the 120 years since the publication of this historic inquiry, the steam and electric railroads of this Commonwealth have developed to a main track length of over 12,000 miles and transport annually in normal times more than 45,000,000 people and 150,000,000 tons of freight. Only two states in the Union exceed the Keystone State in the railroad density as measured by the miles per hundred square miles of territory, and only two exceed her in total mileage of track.

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

"Poor Pierre!" murmured Ellen. "I just had a premonition something had happened to him when Inspector Grange said he was still missing! Haven't you any idea who's behind these terrible murders?"

"Yes, dear, but I'll tell you in the morning."

"Well I'm certainly glad to hear that Roger is recovering. It certainly was a shock to find his body!"

Ellen glanced at the recumbent form on the couch. "Incidentally, Argus," she said, "What are you going to do about Mabel?"

"I'll ship her back in the morning. Martinelli's probably received my ultimatum about an exchange of hostages and is scouring the countryside trying to find you. So I won't throw Mabel out the window as I threatened. It ought to teach him a lesson. And now, I think you ought to get some rest."

"I came here because I was just too scared to go home—and I wanted to talk to you."

"Boy, am I glad you did! You and Mabel take my bed."

Argus picked up Mabel's inert form with a grunt as pain stabbed his wounded shoulder. He trudged into the adjoining room and deposited the body on the bed.

"You see what happens to little girls who drink too much," he said. He removed Mabel's shoes. "Let this be a lesson to you, Miss Curtis, never to—" Ellen returned with some pajamas.

Argus grinned as Ellen pushed him to the doorway.

Argus awakened Ellen at ten the following morning with a kiss. He was shaved and dressed.

"You and Mabel have some breakfast and meet me at Syria's penthouse at 11:15—will you darling?" he whispered. Ellen nodded sleepily. Just as he was tiptoeing out of the room, Mabel stirred and opened one eye tentatively. She quickly closed it again when she saw Argus and moaned.

"What have I done? Dancer will kill both of us! Oh-h-h-h!" She lifted her arm to her head. "It's splittin'!"

"I know how you feel," consoled Argus. He brought her a tall glass of water and dropped a couple of fizz tablets in it.

"This may help," he said, taking it around to her side of the bed. She propped herself up on one elbow and drank. Then, for the first time, she saw Ellen.

"Hey!" she cried. "What goes on here?"

"Don't mind him," cautioned Ellen. "He's just a amateur bigamist. But we won't quarrel over him, will we?"

"Mabel," said Argus, "this is Ellen Curtis. She's been chaperoning you ever since you passed out last night, so you don't have to worry about Dancer." The detective turned to leave. "And now, my lovely ladies," he cheer-oed, "I have some work to do before the last round-up. I'll see you both later." The phone rang. Argus picked it up.

"McGillicuddy's Maternity Ward," he declared.

"Sorry," said a man's voice on the other end. "I must have the wrong number. I wanted Mr. Argus Steele."

Argus laughed. "Go ahead! This is Steele speaking!"

"Oh, Mr. Steele, this is Sergeant O'Brien at police headquarters. Inspector Grange wanted me to call you. He had to go out to Jersey but he said he'd be back in time to meet you at Miss Verne's penthouse at eleven. We examined those sweepings we found in Redbeard's rooming house—"

"And?"

"We found some small fragments of glass, a couple of short reddish hairs and—"

"Any tobacco?"

"No, sir."

"All right. Thank you, Sergeant."

Argus hung up. "Well, I'm really off this time," he said. "Adios!"

Detective Steele paid one call on a jeweler on Madison Avenue before going to Syria's penthouse. According to their agreement, the Inspector had replaced the murder machine exactly as it had been the night of the shooting. Argus walked over to the telephone. He dialed 7-1-1 and then held the receiver to his ear a moment until he heard a clicking sound. Then quickly he dialed the number 5 and immediately hung up the receiver. The phone commenced to ring, but he paid no attention to it.

Argus then took a .38 caliber pistol cartridge from his pocket and, removing the cover of the air-conditioning machine unit, he inserted the shell into the top aperture of the chamber and cocked the gun. He slackened the twine leading from the trigger to the shaft of the fan-blower, then replaced the top of the air-conditioning device, without screwing it back in place. He checked the wire connection between the telephone bell box and the self starter of the air-conditioner. The phone rang and rang, but he continued to ignore it.

The detective sat down in a comfortable upholstered chair and lit a cigarette, as he mapped out a plan of procedure.

"B-rrr—rrr-r, b-rrr-rrr," rang the telephone. "B-rrr—rrr." . . . It fell on deaf ears. In a few minutes the door buzzer sounded. Argus went to the door. Grange was there with a dozen people. Angry voices echoed down the hall.

"Hello, Inspector," smiled Argus. "I see you have your whole brood with you."

"Yeah, and here's the ugliest duck of them all," Grange said, unlocking the handcuff which fastened his wrist to Martinelli's. "Git in there, punk!" He gave Dancer a shove. "And don't let me hear any more squawks out of you."

In the wake of Grange and Martinelli, Argus held the door open while Bill Carstairs and his father entered, followed by Dorry and Roger Flagg. Roger smiled at Argus. He was leaning on the arm of a hospital interne for support. Several police officers brought up the rear of the procession. Dancer scowled at Argus.

Grange leaned over and whispered in the detective's ear. "We found that place in the country. The wire and the string came from there. But guess who it belonged to?"

"Where's that dame?" Martinelli interrupted roughly.

"What dame?" Argus asked.

"You know what dame I mean—Mabel—that's what dame. Where is she?" Dancer looked around the room.

"Don't you want to know about that place in the country?" Grange persisted. "Keep your shirt on, Dancer. Mabel's in good hands. She'll be here in a few minutes with Miss Curtis. She spent the night with her last night."

"Oh yeah?" sneered Martinelli.

"I hold a different story."

The other occupants of the room stared at Argus.

"Steele, the phone is ringing," said Grange. "Shall I see who it is?"

"No, never mind, Inspector. Let it ring." Argus turned to the crowd. "Now if you folks will all just find yourselves comfortable chairs—"

Carstairs Sr. walked up to Argus. "What's the idea of all this poppycock?" he demanded. "It's an outrage!"

"You bet it is," said Dancer. "I know my constitutional rights, see? And if you ain't goin' to answer that phone, I'm goin' to and then call my lawyer. You can't get away wit' nuttin' like this!"

"B-rrr—rrr-r b-rrr—rrr—b-rrr—rrr" the phone kept on.

"For Pete's sake, somebody answer that phone," urged Carstairs, Jr.

"Smatter?" Argus asked. "Got the jitters? I don't want any of you to touch that phone, yet." He paused. "I suppose you all know why you're here."

"I don't know why any of us were made to come here," Dorry snarled in a defiant voice. "I thought there was a law against—"

"Very well, Dorry," interrupted Argus. "I'll explain: Practically all of you might have had one reason or another, for wanting to get rid of Syria Verne, Cynthia Lane and—"

he paused, "Pierre Sturgis. At one time or another, during the investigation of the last few days, each one of you has been suspected individually of being the potential murderer." He looked from one face to another.

"B-rrr-b-rrr-b-rrr" . . . the phone was relentless.

"But, needless to say," Argus continued, "only one of you actually committed the crimes. Isn't that right, Mr. Flagg?"

The model agent looked startled.

"Why, yes, I suppose so," he replied.

"Now, in answer to Dorry Carstairs' protest and complaint," Argus continued, "I think it's only fair for me to tell you briefly a couple of reasons why each of you came under suspicion of complicity in these murders."

HARRISBURG, June 8.—(INS)—Governors attending the 26th annual conference at Hershey were showered with gifts from Gov. Edward Martin that were donated by Pennsylvania businessmen. The gifts included a pen and pencil desk set on a $12 base of polished anthracite coal reportedly costing $50 each. Other gifts presented to each Governor included two white woolen blankets, a gallon of Somerset County maple syrup, polished slate book ends, aluminum ash trays and match holders, a gavel made from the wood of Independence Hall, desk ornaments, glass centerpieces and a copper plaque of Abraham Lincoln cast before the metal shortage.

The Pennsylvania State Police did an excellent job of keeping the strings of cars moving between Harrisburg and Hershey and on a side trip to Indiantown Gap. Weeks before the conference opened, Col. C. M. Wilhelm, State Police Commissioner, surveyed the routes to assure prompt passage of the cars. When the conference opened, more than 100 State Police were on duty along the highways. A teletypewriter was installed in the Hershey Hotel connected with the state-wide police network to give officials up-to-the-minute traffic and weather information.

Capitol Hill newspapermen knew for more than 10 days that Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, and Admiral Ernest J. King, Commander of Naval Operations and the U. S. Fleet, would attend the Governor's Conference but were pledged to secrecy. Governor Martin disclosed they would attend the meeting in an "off the record" statement and emphasized that their security depended upon pre-Conference secrecy. Newspapermen were barred from their meetings with the Governors and while the chief executives did not discuss the addresses, they admitted they were impressed with the two ranking officers. One Governor predicted Marshall would be an ideal Presidential candidate after the war. So far removed from politics, however, are Marshall and King that no one was able to remember the political affiliations of the two men.

Governor Martin's military training served him well in planning the conference. Everything moved with clock-like precision according to a time table prepared by the Governor and his aides. Realizing the difficulty of getting the Governors and their official parties to appear promptly for the State banquet Monday because they were scattered through the spacious Hershey Hotel, the Governor neatly solved the problem by having an Army bugler sound mess call in the lobby. Within five minutes the dining room was beginning to fill. When the car carrying Florida's Governor Spessard L. Holland had a tire blow out, the chief executive and his party were whisked into another automobile and a station wagon pulled alongside the disabled car and helped the driver change tires. Within 10 minutes the Florida Governor's car was underway.

NEW AIR FORCE CHIEF

HEADQUARTERS, PANAMA CANAL.—(INS)—Brig. Gen. Edgar P. Sorensen of Gelmville, Minn., a veteran of 26 years service with the Air Corps, has assumed command of the Sixth Air Force, succeeding Brig. Gen. Ralph H. Wooten, who is taking over a new command. The new chief is no stranger to the area, having joined the headquarters staff of General Wooten in February, 1943, and having served successively as chief of the Sixth Air Force service command and chief of staff of the Sixth Air Force. More recently he was on duty with the Caribbean Defense Command under Lieut. Gen. George H. Brett.

FAMOUS "SCOTTY" FOOTWEAR. Can now be had at the delightful price of $4.85 for Snellenburg Week. I love the high style of various "Scotty" models, and now, at such a reduced price, they'll go like hot cakes. You can buy them in black patent and black or tan calfskin. There are heel heights to suit all corners. Pumps, ties, etc. "Scotties" are well made and well worth your precious ration stamps. Have a look around this whole first floor Shoe Dept. while you're about it. Snellenburg keeps several other reliable makes of shoes, some of them exclusive with this reliable store.

CLEVER RAINCOATS, the kind that give a woman that military "glamour," can now be had in the Snellenburg Raincoat Dept. (2nd fl.) for only $15. The model I have in mind is a swanky "trench." Double-breasted, and with those convenient side-opening pockets. There's a wide belt of the splendid material of which the coat is made. Comes in natural color, and in sizes 12 to 26. Can be worn the year round. Buy it and pray for rain!

NEW CHAIR COMFORT! Very modern in design is a new design portable armchair, upholstered in genuine pigskin leather of a charming dull rose shade. The unusual back height is 28 3/4 inches, the seat measures 16 by 14 inches. This is a chair that looks well in any room in the house except the kitchen and bathroom. It can also be carried to the porch for extra seating. From one to four such chairs would be an investment in comfort as well as smartness. $6.95. Snellenburg Summer Furniture Dept. (4th fl.)

PRETTY SUMMER LINGERIE has been all too scarce, but the Lingerie Dept. on the Snellenburg 2nd floor has a charming array of nighties and slips at only $1.79 each. There are cotton nighties, floral-printed, in several sweet styles. Marvelously cool. They come in sizes 32 to 38. A new group of nicely made rayon crepe and satin slips is offered, also at $1.79. They come either tailored or lace trimmed, and are cut for lying smooth under summer frocks. Sizes 32 to 40. Both slips and nighties are a definite "buy."

CALIFORNIA COTTONS, such as are found in the Snellenburg Sun Shop (2nd fl.), have a swish and a dash hard to duplicate. The simplest of Sun Shop things are definitely smart and have that quality of doing something for one. I'd like you to try on one of the new $6.95 California play suits. They come in gorgeous floral and imaginative prints, bright colors on gleaming white backgrounds. They are one-piece and have inset belts, shirt-waist tops, button-front skirts, very, very smart. Sizes 12 to 18.

8TH AIR FORCE EYES BIG CITIES OF JAPAN

Jimmy Doolittle's Fliers
Await Day They Can Hit
Little Brown Men

HAVE EYES ON TOKYO

By John W. Jarrell
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE 8TH U. S. AIR FORCE, England, June 8—(INS)—Japanese officers, downing their hot sake wine in Tokyo's swank Imperial Hotel, or strolling down the capital's Ginza, might just as well know right now: the hardest-hitting air force in the world is looking forward to leveling industrial Japan to the ground.

Because the 8th U. S. Air Force, which has reduced so many German industrial targets to the merest rubble, expects—and hopes—to throw its might against the Nipponese empire, and in the not too distant future, too.

Naturally, the sprawling city of Tokyo itself plays an important part in those expectations, along with Kobe, Osaka, Nagasaki and other seats of the Pacific enemy's war industry.

Nor is there any comfort for Japan's war lords in contemplation of the 8th Air Force's commander, Lieut. Gen. James Doolittle. For it was Jimmy Doolittle who, on April 18, 1942, led his courageous band of B-25 fliers from an American aircraft carrier to attack Tokyo and other Japanese targets in one of the most sensational exploits of this world war.

It is no secret that high-ranking officers of the Eighth Air Force are watching developments in the Pacific carefully, studying their maps in anticipation of the day when it is decided their duties in the ETO have been completed.

Then the Eighth hopes to give Tokyo a taste of what Berlin has felt.

That would mean that Tokyo would be showered with nearly 3,000 tons of high explosive and incendiary bombs at a crack.

It would make that 1942 raid by Doolittle's men, which sent all Japan into a panic, appear to be a pink tea affair.

Officers of the Eighth Air Force have no idea where they will go, if they are sent against the Japs. But there is much speculation that eventually they may wind up in China, a logical spot for carrying out operations against Japan proper, to augment Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's small—but exceedingly tough—Fourteenth U. S. Air Force, which shoots down Jap planes at a ratio of 14 for one.

Obviously, a giant airforce like the Eighth could not operate from China, with anything like its potential power, so long as the only means of getting supplies—which means gasoline and bombs—into Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's embattled country is by airplane over the Himalaya mountains.

But Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's Chinese and American forces are today battling in northern Burma to clear a path for U. S. engineers constructing the new Ledo road, designed to connect somewhere with the old Burma road. And the Chinese themselves have crossed the Salween river in force in an attempt to link up with "Vinegar Joe's" jungle-wise troops.

Too, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz has announced that eventually there must be an amphibious landing on China's east coast, to open a supply route by sea.

So the Eighth Air Force is able to see ahead to the day when China may be supplied by land or water.

Only recently, Tokyo—which gets the purple jitters at the very thought of a bombing of Nippon—reported that Jap planes had raided a new American airfield at Suichang, in the northern part of Kiangsi province.

Suichang is only 1,300 miles from Tokyo, and only 800 miles from Nagasaki, the center of Japan's industrial region. It lies but 400 miles from Formosa and 1,000 miles from Manila.

The Japs declared the base was second only to Kunning in China. One can imagine what the powerful Eighth Air Force could do to Japan from a base that close to the enemy's mainland.

For arrogant little Nipponese officers, strutting through Tokyo with their short swords clanking at their sides, it is a horrifying picture. What has been done to Berlin and Hamburg obviously is in store for Tokyo.

CAST IRON ITEMS SHOULD BE WELL SEASONED FOR USE

By Mrs. Mary Jacoby Fleetham

(Home Economics Representative)
Cast iron cooking ware is on the market in larger quantities this spring. The iron released last fall to manufacturers of cooking utensils by the War Production Board is now appearing on retail shelves as skillets, griddles, kettles and dutch ovens.

Before the war, most cast iron cooking ware was seasoned at the factory, so was ready to use as soon as it was washed. The shortage of labor today, however, is bringing most iron utensils to market unseasoned, so this is a job that must be done in the home kitchen. Iron utensils that are not seasoned dis-colored foods and cause them to stick to the metal. To season new cast iron kettles or pans rub the inside with some unsalted fat such as vegetable oil, suet or lard. Then heat the utensil several hours over low heat on top of the stove or in the oven. Rub off the fat with absorbent paper or a dry clean cloth, and let the utensil cool. Do not wash. Repeat the treatment the following day. For the first few times cook only fresh meat or bread in the utensil, and clean by rubbing with paper or cloth, not with soap and water. When the fat has worked in thoroughly, the metal is seasoned and can be washed or not, as the cook prefers. Whenever it is to be stored, however, an iron utensil should be coated with unsalted fat and left uncovered to prevent rusting.

Cast iron discolors any acid food cooked in it but this discoloration is harmless. Tomatoes, for example, which have turned brownish from cooking in an iron pan are wholesome, though not so attractive in color and flavor, but may have extra iron in a form which the body can use.

PARKER IS HAILED AS GREAT RUNNER

By Lawton Carver
I. N. S. Sports Editor
NEW YORK, June 8.—(INS)—The greatest school boy runner since the hey-day of Jesse Owens—and possibly the best ever—will be unveiled during the National A. A. U. track and field championships in New York on June 17-18. His name is Charley Parker, of San Antonio, Tex., who was slated to make his bid on the big time last year, when, just two weeks before the Nationals, he was stricken with appendicitis.

Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., a man generally known as Mr. Track and Field, firmly believes that the tall and gangly young Texan stands a chance of vying out all the dash marks ever written into the books.

Clyde Littlefield, University of Texas track and field coach, agrees with Ferris, or, in fact, gave Ferris the idea in the first place by pointing out what Parker has done in southwestern meets.

The marks that Parker will shoot at here are the 100 meters and the 200 meters. Owens holds the world standards of 10.2 and 20.3. In fact, as a schoolboy the 17-year-old Parker already has bettered Owens' best school boy performance for the 200 yards, which he negotiated in 20.6.

He is quite definitely the outstanding individual currently in the track and field business and a serious-minded youngster, according to Ferris, who thinks Parker is likely to prove a sensation in the national championships. He is going to run in both the senior and the junior events.

Parker has run in 14 races this season and set nine new records of one kind and another besides tying two others. He is undefeated since 1941. He has won 49 dashes without a defeat, exclusive of trial heats in which he also has always been the victor.

Aside from his running, the new meteor in track and field is an A-1 student and president of the Jefferson High School student council at San Antonio. He tried to fit himself into V-5 or V-12 programs, but was rejected because of color blindness. He still expects to get into the Army one way or another, then after the war will study law at the university of Texas.

Parker is 5 feet 9½ inches tall and weighs 149 pounds. He has a long stride and what coaches call absolutely flawless natural form. They figure he is a cinch to break the longer dash records and at least a potential shatterer of the shorter dash marks.

"This young fellow really looks like the greatest thing that has come along in years," Ferris said today, "and it will be interesting to watch him go in our Nationals after all this time since there has been a sprinter of such class around."

Biggest Circus Ousts "Umpah" From Its Music

With the arrival at Erie avenue and G street, Philadelphia, of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, patrons are enjoying the absence of a traditional circus grem-

DEFENSIVE DEMON By Jack Sords

In that has, until this year, been part of the circus musical program. The "umpah" in the band is not there.

The circus will remain in Philadelphia until June 17th.

This annoying element of all former circus music has been emphatically removed, by the new Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey all-brass Wonder Band through revolutionary instrumentation by the show's musical director, Bert Knapp. Mr. Knapp, collaborating with Robert Ringling, who staged the 1944 edition of the circus, has created a new school of circus music which entirely deletes the boring "umpah, umpah."

To do this effectively was no easy task for Mr. Ringling and Mr. Knapp, who worked together on the problem for several years. It meant radical changes in the band itself before they came through with the greatest musical achievement in the history of the circus.

The new formula calls for an all-brass band, first ever with The Greatest Show on Earth, and replaces the wood-winds with a section of the rare Bayreuth tubas, thus bringing out richer beauty of tone, even with a band greater in size and scope than any ever heard under canvas.

Performances of the huge circus are given at 2:15 and 8:15. To permit leisurely inspection of the mammoth new menagerie, the doors are open at one and seven.

ALLIES PUSH STEADILY ON IN NORMANDY, DESPITE A DETERMINED RESISTANCE BY GERMANS; CAPTURE BY ALLIES OF STRATEGIC BAYEUX ROAD HUB ANNOUNCED

Heavy Tank Battle On One Part of Invasion Front

STREAMS OF PLANES

Keynote of Campaign, Successful Landing, Airborne Formations

By Kingsbury Smith
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 8.—(INS)—Allied armies in Normandy, strengthened during the night by air-borne reinforcements—troops, anti-tank guns, motor transports and considerable other supplies—made steady progress inland today from secured beachheads on the coast of northern France.

Advances were made despite determined German resistance. The communiqué announcing steady progress by the American, British and Canadian forces confirmed the Allied capture of the strategic road hub of Bayeux, and a headquarters spokesman said that its occupation is very good news since it opens up the possibility of an advance from that particular point.

Bayeux, on the main rail line linking the big port of Cherbourg with Paris, some 130 miles to the southeast, lies five miles inland from the Bay of the Seine.

Troops which took Bayeux cut the Bayeux-Caen highway at several points.

Allied forces which pressed inland engaged the Germans at different points in fierce fighting.

A heavy tank battle is in progress on one sector of the French invasion front, according to a broadcast by a BBC correspondent reported by the Blue Network.

CALL FOR GREY LADIES

The Philadelphia hospitals are urgently calling for Grey Ladies, a call being issued through Bristol Board of the Red Cross. A concentrated training course is scheduled for two days, Monday, June 19, and Wednesday, June 21, from 10.15 a. m. to 3.30 p. m., at Chapter Headquarters, 511 North Broad street, Philadelphia. Women between the ages of 21 to 55, who have one day a week available, are asked to give it to this worthwhile service. Registration at chapter headquarters for prospective Grey Ladies will close on June 12th.

WINS COMPETITION

William Duffy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Duffy, Pine street, captured the crew of Northeast Catholic High School, for Boys, Philadelphia, last week, when said crew won the cup in competition with the Philadelphia Roman Catholic High School, last week. The affair took place on the Schuylkill River, and Mr. and Mrs. Duffy and daughter, Mary, attended.

TO HAVE VISITATION

State and national officers will visit the Daughters of America in F. P. A. hall tomorrow evening. The program will open at 8.15. All local officers are requested to wear white.

THE WAR AT A GLANCE

(By International News Service)
Anglo-American forces made steady progress inland from beachheads secured on the coast of Normandy, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced today, revealing also that contact is being established between seaborne and airborne troops which landed deep inside Northern France.

Gen. Eisenhower's communiqué said fierce armored and infantry fighting raged, with the Germans organizing to combat the invasion forces which already had captured their first Norman town and severed a vital coastwise highway.

Generally heavy fighting flared at many points after the Allies captured the town of Bayeux, five miles inland from the bay of the Seine. In addition to capturing the town, the invading forces in several places severed the main highway between Bayeux and Caen, 15 miles to the southeast.

Moreover, the main rail line linking the port of Cherbourg with Paris runs through Bayeux, fall of which must greatly weaken the position of the enemy garrison within that important channel port.

Headquarters also reported that landing of more allied reinforcements continued during the night, air-borne reserves being flown in under cover of darkness. While the strengthening operations proceeded, heavy British bombers smashed key Nazi positions in the battle area.

More than 9,000 sorties were flown in tactical support of the land and naval forces, and 120 enemy planes were destroyed by the allied airmen yesterday.

During the night, unsuccessful

BRISTOL MAN DID "D" DAY RESCUE WORK

Leonard Herman, C. M. M., Back at English Port For Brief Respite

ON CHANNEL 40 HOURS

A Bristol coast guardsman, Chief Machinists Mate Leonard Herman, is back at an English port for a short respite following 40 hours of invasion activity in the English Channel.

Herman, 27, is one of a trio of men from this section of the country who are crew members of a tiny Coast Guard cutter which was kept busy as part of a rescue flotilla during "D" day.

"D" day for them, as for millions of others was a long one, but one which marked what the Allies vow will be the "beginning of the end" of Nazi rule.

Herman is the husband of Nan Town-end Herman, of Mansion St., and son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Herman, of Wood street. He has been in the service for 2½ years.

The others from the Philadelphia area who with the Bristolian were kept busy in the channel during the initial part of the invasion are George B. Walton, Boatswains Mate 1/c, of St. David's; and Peter Marshall, of Beach Haven, N. J.

Herman who was employed by Sears, Roebuck Co. before entering the Coast Guard service, was a former star football player at Bristol high school.

Two Bucks Countians To Graduate in Phila.

PHILADELPHIA, June 8.—Two Bucks County students will be among the 57 graduates receiving diplomas from Temple University high school at exercises tonight in Thatcher Hall.

They are: Stuart N. James, Parkland; and John Wendell Martin, Bristol. Both have successfully completed the academic curriculum. Martin will receive an award for excellence in English.

JOSEPH J. MAITHA

LANGHORNE, June 8.—Funeral of Joseph J. Maitha were held here today. The Rev. Henry Cunningham conducted the service at the Horner funeral home at 11 o'clock. Mr. Maitha, who had been ill a long time, is survived by his wife, Emma; and the following children: Joseph, with the navy in South America; Vincent, at Fort Belvoir, Va.; Kermit, at Langley Field, Va.; David, in New Guinea; Irma, Armand and Quentin, of Langhorne.

ATONISLS REMOVED

Marie Maglione, Pond street, had her tonsils removed at Harriman Hospital on Tuesday.

Strategic Mokmer Field Captured By Allies

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(INS)—A vital doorway leading toward the Philippines and the Dutch East Indies swung open today with the capture by Allied forces of the strategic Mokmer airfield on Blak Island off the northwestern coast of New Guinea.

Meanwhile Japanese cargo vessels sought to move supplies and possibly reinforcements into the Truk area apparently in preparation for new American thrusts through the mandated islands.

Capture of Mokmer airfield after an eleven-day struggle was announced by Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his seizure brought potential Allied air forces within 880 miles of Japanese positions in the southern Philippines.

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

GLEANEY BY SCRIBES

Scores of persons, including relatives and friends of the pupils of the Sell-Perk schools, on Thursday and Friday attended the art and shop exhibit at the school here.

Features of the exhibit included a project on China which was made by the seventh grades in both towns, finger paintings, grades 1-4, and original paintings by Carroll Gantz, Sellersville.

Two demonstrations were given, air brush technique by Evelyn Thompson and ceramic jewelry making, by Jack Meserve, both of the junior class.

Rites Are Conducted For Rev. Fr. P. J. Brennan

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, June 8.—Funeral was held yesterday for the Rev. Fr. Patrick J. Brennan, C. S. S. P., who died at Bay City, Mich., on Friday. Solemn Requiem Mass was said in Holy Ghost College, with burial taking place on the college burial grounds.

The late priest, who had been stationed some years ago at the local college, served as assistant rector of St. Joseph's Church, Bay City, Mich., for three years. A native of Ireland he was educated here, and ordained at Norwalk, Conn., in 1925. He had also served at St. Peter Claver Church and Our Lady of Blessed Sacrament Church, Philadelphia.

Survivors are three sisters and three brothers, Mrs. Mary Walsh, Mrs. Ellen Gallagher, Philadelphia; Mrs. Katherine Smyth, New York, N. Y.; John, Michael and Mark Brennan, of Philadelphia.

The W. L. Murphy Est., funeral directors, had charge of the burial.

Republican Women Are Planning Card Party

The June meeting of The Lower Bucks County Council of Republican Women will take on the form of a card party in place of its usual trend. This party will be held in the Travel Club home on the evening of Tuesday, June 13th, at eight o'clock.

Members and friends of council, and all others who plan to attend, anticipate a pleasant evening as the well organized committees will award prizes and serve refreshments.

WAR STAMP DAY

The Bristol Girl Scouts will sell war stamps throughout Bristol tomorrow. This will enable everyone to get stamps to finish the books which are lying around gathering no interest. All books should be filled so that they can be converted into bonds during the fifth war loan drive which starts Monday, June 12th, state the drive leaders.

CIVIL SERVICE

The local civil service office has received a request to fill a vacancy for the position of procurement inspector (aircraft) at $2309 per annum, plus overtime. Requirement for this position is one year's experience in the inspection of aircraft. The necessary form for application for this position may be made at the Bristol post office.

GAINS PROMOTION

Hear How Railroads Are Aiding War Effort

ANDALUSIA, June 8.—A. B. Cole, of Jersey City, N. J., representing the Association of American Railroads, addressed Bensalem Rotarians Tuesday evening in King Hall, following dinner. Mr. Cole was accompanied by Theodore Rhinehart, of Newark, N. J., also representing the same association. Elmer B. Vansant presided.

Mr. Cole told of the work the railroads are doing under the stress of war, and the importance to the Allied cause of such type of transportation. He gave it as his opinion that the reliance of Hitler upon highways rather than upon railroads for his transportation needs in Europe will contribute greatly to his downfall "as the railroads have proven to be the most dependable means of transportation. Nothing can move huge groups of men as can the railroads," he added as he told of unprecedented demands made on such during the present war.

Mr. Cole informed that more people and material have been handled during this war, with comparatively less equipment, than at any time in the country's history. He attributed the ability to the fact that the locomotives are more powerful and other equipment better. Statistics were given to show how work of the railroads has been "stepped up" since World War I.

A visitor at the meeting was George Ardrey, of Bristol.

Offices not previously filled were cared for Tuesday. Harold H. Haefner was named vice president; Phillip G. Mack and Rhetner Tomlinson, directors; and Charles V. Wenner, treasurer.

May "Streamline" U. S. Military Establishments

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(INS)—The Army and Navy, it was disclosed today, have established a joint committee to consider "streamlining" the nation's military establishments by merger of the two fighting forces and creation of a separate Department of Air.

This disclosure was made public by the House Committee on Post-war Military Policy in a printed report by Rep. Woodrum (D., Va.), chairman of the Congressional group studying consolidation of the two services.

The order was contained in a directive by the joint chiefs of staff which also revealed previous reports made separately by Army and Navy members of a special investigating committee showing "widely divergent views and inability to agree."

WOULD RATHER ARGUE WITH "COPS" THAN EAT

DOYLESTOWN, June 8.—John Leary would rather argue with cops than eat, even though he's 69. He challenges them regardless of size, when he's drunk.

Leary, who lives in Doylestown Township when he's out of jail, is establishing a record for the Bucks County Prison for serving time for summary convictions.

In 1942 he served a total of 200 days; in 1943 he slipped to 180 days, but he got out three days ago after serving his 60th day in 1944. He's back in on a 30-day sentence imposed yesterday by Justice of the Peace William Wrigley, of Edison, for being drunk and disorderly.

BOLTON-PIERCY

CROYDON, June 7.—Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Piercy announce the marriage of their daughter, May A., to Cpl. James Leighton Bolton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bolton, Bristol, on May 27th. The ceremony took place in the post chapel, Parris Island, S. C., with Chaplain Novak, U. S. N., officiating.

The final meeting for the summer of the Junior Travel Club will be held this evening at 6.30 at the club home. A picnic supper is planned, and a business meeting will follow.

"Golden Arrow" Halted by Fire

Philadelphia—An oil-grease fire in the understructure of the locomotive today halted the Chicago-bound Pennsylvania Railroad train. "The Golden Arrow" for 74 minutes at Frankford Junction. The flames broke out less than 100 feet from the point where the Congressional Limited, crack PRR streamliner, was wrecked last Labor Day, killing 79 persons. The engineman told authorities that when the train automatically jolted to a stop, he found thick, acrid smoke pouring from the understructure. Philadelphia firemen extinguished the blaze with chemicals.

REFUSE TO ADMIT TO DOYLESTOWN SCHOOLS THOSE IN ARREARS IN PAYMENT OF TUITION

DOYLESTOWN, June 8.—Children whose parents have not paid their tuition at the Doylestown schools during the past year will not be enrolled for the coming year until the arrears are paid, according to the action taken by the school board this week.

The decision was taken at the request of Supervising Principal J. Leonard Halderman, who reported that there are several cases where he could get no response to his demand for the tuition for the past year.

The board approved the opening of a summer school at which five-possibly, six teachers will be employed. Only those students who deserve to be given the opportunity

CITIZENS' DEFENSE ASSOCIATION MEETS

Walter Gillette Reports $187.72 Cleared At Recent Auction

TO AID BOND DRIVE

NEWPORT TERRACE, June 8.—President Walter Gillette reported at the meeting of the Citizens Defense Association, held Monday evening, that $187.72 had been realized at the recent auction. Mr. Gillette said the community had wholeheartedly supported the affair and that he was pleased with the effort put forth by both workers and donors.

A question of what to do with clothing in excellent condition, left from the sale was considered. It was decided to send the garments to Christ Home, Warmminster.

Mr. Gillette urged members to give their support to the 5th War Loan drive, and plans were discussed for stimulating the sale of bonds in the community.

Ottsville Man Finds Purse Containing $169

OTTSVILLE, June 8.—Diogenes, according to Ernest Foellner, a well-known farmer of Ottsville, could never have found a man whose honesty surpasses the honesty of Nicholas Buck. And his uncanny ability to find lost articles causes his friends amazement.

While preparing to plant corn recently, Mr. Foellner lost a wallet containing $139, and he walked through the field several times, but failed to find the wallet.

Mr. Buck was painting at the Foellner home at the time, and he was told of the loss. Mr. Buck offered to take up the search, and after supper several evenings later the painter took out time to look for the missing wallet. In less than ten minutes the painter was back at the Foellner home with wallet and its contents.

This, according to Mr. Foellner, is not the first time Mr. Buck has found wallets and returned them to their owners intact.

Several years ago he found a wallet containing more than $700, and on another occasion he found another containing a large sum on the Easton highway. Both wallets, with their contents intact, were returned to their rightful owners.

RECEIVES TWO PRIZES

ALLENTOWN, June 8.—Miss Lilie Gilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Gilton, Bristol, who was graduated with a bachelor of arts degree this week, was the recipient of two prizes offered by the St-On-Ja Language Club for her high scholastic achievement in the advanced work both in the department of Spanish and the department of French. Miss Gilton was also named as one of the eight honor graduates of the 62 members of the senior class.

Hunter Firm Building Ignites 2nd and 3rd Time

For the second and third time in less than 36 hours one of the small buildings at the Bath Road plant of Hunter Manufacturing Corp. caught fire last evening.

The alarms were received by fire companies in Bristol at seven and 11.15 o'clock last night. Bristol Consolidated Co., and volunteer companies Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 6 responded to the alarms but did not get into action, they being informed upon arrival at the plant that the fires were extinguished.

On Tuesday afternoon the one-story frame structure was damaged at one end; and in the two subsequent fires last evening, it is stated the additional damage was slight. Workers were unharmed, it is said.

TELLS WHY PEOPLE OF U. S. ARE DIFFERENT

Wilbur Stetson Reads Essay Which Won Mothers' Ass'n Prize

AT COMMENCEMENT

"Why Are We Americans Different?" was the title of the essay which won for Wilbur Stetson, member of the class of 1944, Bristol high school, the Mothers' Association prize. The essay, which Stetson read at commencement exercises on Tuesday evening, follows:

Why are we Americans different? There are a number of contributing factors causing this marked difference between an American and a citizen of any other country in the world. Perhaps the most important is that the American is a mixture or a new alloy or compound of the characteristics of many races and nationalities. For example, can we avoid being affected by the British love of freedom, when such a large percentage of our people are English in their ancestry? In like manner, have we not been influenced by the Italian's love of laughter, the thrift of the Scotch and Scandinavian people, the industry and frugality of the Teutonic or Germanic races and the Central European's love of art and knowledge? Just as certainly as the tides of the ocean are affected by the moon and the growth of young flowers by the rain and sun. While people of other nations possess only two or three of these qualities, the typical American is a composite of all and is, of course, different from the others.

Another large and vital factor in

30% Traffic Increase Noticed On Turnpike

HARRISBURG, June 8.—(INS)—A 30% increase in passenger car travel on the $71,000,000 Harrisburg to Pittsburgh super-highway during the first four months of this year was reported today by the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission.

A spokesman disclosed that 135,038 automobiles used the express highway during the January-March period, compared with 141,962 in the corresponding months last year.

Truck traffic, however, dropped from 99,437 last year to 93,563 during the same period in 1944, he added.

Relaxed restrictions on gasoline were credited by the spokesman with the passenger car increase, but he emphasized "there were practically no pleasure drivers."

Passenger car traffic in 1943 totaled 786,000, a 67% decline over 1942, the spokesman reported.

Seek A Full-Time Dog Law Enforcement

PERKASIE, June 8.—Members of the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs in session here last night decided to start a campaign to secure a full-time dog law enforcement in Bucks county, and to appeal to the Legislature if necessary.

Under the present system there is but one officer for Philadelphia, Bucks and Montgomery counties. Announcement was also made by Game Protector Earl J. Carpenter, of Doylestown, that 233 gray foxes and 154 weasels had been killed in Bucks county last winter.

BACK IN U. S.

Jacob Kutschera Dies Following An Operation

A resident of Bristol for the past 10 years died yesterday in Abington Hospital following an operation. He is Jacob Kutschera, 55, husband of Anne Kutschera. The deceased resided at 1613 Wilson avenue.

He is also survived by two sons, Jacob, Jr., and John Joseph. Mr. Kutschera was employed by Rohm & Haas Chemical Co.

The late Mr. Kutschera was a member of Rohm & Haas social club, Bristol; the United German-Hungarians of Philadelphia; and the German-Hungarian Business Men's Association of Philadelphia.

The service will be conducted on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at a funeral home, 1532 N. 4th street, Philadelphia. Burial will be in Northwood Cemetery, that city, and friends may call on Friday evening.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

KEESLER FIELD, Biloxi, Miss., June 8.—Pvt. Thomas Di Lorenzo, son of Mrs. Marie Di Lorenzo, Cedar street, Bristol, Pa., has reported at this unit of the Army Air Forces Training Command to begin a phase of processing designed to determine his qualifications as a pre-aviation cadet.

Upon successful completion of medical and psychological tests, classification and training, he will be sent to a college or university for five months of further study. It is found that he has sufficient academic background, he will be sent directly to a pre-flight center for cadet training.

MANPOWER ORDER

Order by the War Manpower Commission, by which it assumes absolute control of all male labor over 17 years of age, beginning July 1, was issued at an unfortunate time. The Governors' Conference had adjourned at Hershey, Pa., the day before, after giving Federal bureaucracy a verbal shellacking such as it never had received before.

And the order followed by only two days government action in ordering the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation to retain thousands of workers on the payroll who had been laid off because their services were made unnecessary by cancellation of Navy contracts. This move by the government followed sit-down strikes of Brewster employees who, by the thousands, refused to leave the plants unless they were assured they would be kept on the payroll.

In California, a large airplane manufacturing company has announced that 8,000 employees will be laid off gradually as contracts are terminated. And Senator Mc-Carran, of Nevada, making campaign speeches in his home state
recently, boasted that the War Production Board had been persuaded by him not to cut production of magnesium at the $135-000,000 plant at Las Vegas, Nev., by 50 per cent, as had been contemplated.

To the average layman—which means a taxpayer who is not included among the 3,200,000 civilians now on the Federal payroll—the order of the Manpower Commission which makes it impossible for any male over 17 years of age to change jobs, or for any employer to hire a male employee except with the permission, consent, etc., of the United States Employment Service, does not make sense. To the thousands of employees of the United States Employment Service this move, no doubt, will seem like a great improvement on the manner of seeking jobs or employees that has prevailed in this country since 1492.

HOW STRONG?

Among German prisoners taken by the Allies are many who are 16 years old and many who are more than 40. On some days no Nazi planes whatever rise to challenge the Allied air invaders and on any day the enemy planes are hopelessly outnumbered.
Three-fourths of Germany's natural oil resources are gone and synthetic oil plants are shattered.
Just how strong is Germany today? Is that nation, which over-ran Europe and seemed for a time to be in position to take in Asia and Africa as well, now an empty shell exhausted by its own stupendous effort and gutted by the growing firepower of surrounding hostile nations which are confining it into an ever narrowing area?

Probably no one knows the real situation any more than it was known in the spring of 1918 that Germany was within five or six months of surrender. Basically, Germany's situation is much worse today than it was then.

This Month's STAR RECIPE

BETTY BARCLAY

Food is the staff of life; fruit is needed in our meals and we know eggs, milk and cereals are basic foods too. So we've combined them in this month's "Star" recipe. All these plus the necessary
"touchers-uppers" make a fruit bread that will be popular, both for home and lunch box sandwiches.
Try this recipe and see how your breakfast cereal may be used to make dishes for any meal.

Fruit Bread

2 cups milk, scalded
1 cup Grape-Nuts
2 cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
3 tablespoons melted butter or other shortening
1 cup finely cut prunes or raisins
2 teaspoons ground lemon rind
Pour milk over Grape-Nuts; cool.
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and sugar, and sift again. Add egg, shortening, fruit and rind to Grape-Nuts mixture and stir well; add flour mixture, stirring only enough to dampen all flour. Turn into greased loaf pan, 9x5x3 inches; let stand 20 minutes. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 1 hour and 25 minutes, or until done. Wrap in damp cloth and store several hours or overnight before slicing.

David John Griswold, 41, 19 Assunking street, and Bessie Mallard, 38, 288 N. Clinton street, both of Trenton, N. J.

Richard Arthur Green, 33, 331
Stockham street, Morrisville, and
Josephine Holcombe Patterson, 33,
New Hope.

Dr. Esquire Hawkins, Jr., 43, 216
Railroad avenue, Ambler, and Malinda Farmer, 42, 4939 Powelton avenue, Philadelphia.

Norman Webster Refsnyder, 26, and Helen Mae Schroy, 20, both of Richlandtown.

HOSPITAL CARE

NEW YORK—(INS)—A total of 458,560,260 patient days of hospital care was given in hospitals in 1943, an increase of 10 per cent over the preceding year, statistics of the American Hospital Association disclose.

CAMDEN, N. J.—(INS)—War workers at RCA-Victor's Camden plant have organized the first industrial Coast Guard Volunteer Port Security Force platoon in the nation. The platoon will consist of 8 to 60 men from the plant, who will serve 12 hours a week under Coast Guard officers, without pay.

That unused furniture in your home may be needed by some one.

Miss Carolyn B. Swetland Graduates At New Brunswick

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 8.—Miss Carolyn B. Swetland, of Schumacher Drive, Bristol, Pa., received the degree of bachelor of science yesterday at the commencement exercises at New Jersey College for Women, Miss Swetland is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark W. Swetland and is a graduate of Hightstown, N. J., high school.

At the college, Miss Swetland majored in chemistry. A scholarship holder during the four years of her college career, she was on the Dean's List and received undergraduate honors for her fine academic standing. She has been a member of the Curie Science Club for two years and during her first three years at college belonged to Capella, student orchestra, serving as its corresponding secretary in her sophomore year and as recording secretary the next year. Miss Swetland was a member of the Protestant Fellowship in her senior year, and was baritone member in a brass ensemble for the outdoor Christmas carols.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

WITH fresh vegetables and fruits becoming more plentiful, while most meats remain not-so-plentiful, salads continue to be an important factor in the planning of luncheon and dinner menus.

Springtime Sunday dinner, says the A & P Service for Home-Makers, may attractively begin with a light salad-appetizer course—orange or grapefruit sections, avocado slices, fresh berries, pieces of banana, lettuce, French dressing. If served as a cup, a spoonful or two of grapefruit adds rich color and pleasant grape flavor.

Should there be need to help out a not-too-heavy main course of cold platter, omelet or spaghetti, recourse may be had to the wide variety of salads, filling and flavorful, which combine vegetables with fish, cheese, chicken, eggs and such meats as tongue, bacon and ham.

Tomatoes are now in good supply, also cabbage, carrots, onions and home-grown spinach, scallions and radishes. Escarole and romaine are coming into the market. Watermelons have begun to appear, at fairly moderate prices, and the first blueberries, both from the deep south fruit belt. Cuban pineapples are plentiful. Poultry supplies are increasing, especially ducks, and there is a little more beef. Pork loins and smoked hams are now limited, due to government buying, but there is no lack of other pork cuts and processed meats.

Some Sunday dinner suggestions suited to the season and the market's offerings:

No. 1
Celery and Olives
Roast Duck
Apple Stuffing
Farsley Potato Balls
Asparagus
Rhubarb Tapioca
Coffee or Tea

No. 2
Cream of Potato Soup
Peppers Stuffed with Hamburger and Rice
Glazed Onions
Fresh Fruit Salad
Cup Cakes
Coffee

No. 3
Avocado-Citrus Salad
Cold Meat Platter
New Potatoes in Cream
Carrots and Peas
Spice Pudding with
Brown Sugar Sauce
Tea or Coffee—Hot or Iced

Today's Quiet Moment (By the Rev. James R. Galley) Pastor Bristol Presbyterian Church

O Lord, our God, save us from the sin of despair. Light the lamp of hope within every heart. Fill us with the spirit of expectancy. Teach us that ruined lives may be rebuilt, and that in Christ is sufficiency for all our needs. We are thankful that Christ is the way to our Father's House, that there is forgiveness for all, the bread of life for all, and a welcome for all who call upon His Name. Clothe us with the garment of righteousness, and give us the joy of knowing that Thou dost own us as Thy children. Through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen.

CASE PACKERS IX HANDS 9-6 DEFEAT TOR. & H. TEAM

Losing Streak of Chemical Mixers Reaches
Twelve

WEAKENS AT END

Croasdale, Losing Hurler,
Is Hit Quite
Freely

The losing streak of the Rohm and Haas team reached twelve last evening as the Case Packers handed the chemical workers a 9-6 defeat on the Maple Beach diamond.

The local team weakened in the closing innings to give the Packers the victory as going into the fifth, the chemical mixers were ahead, 5-3. The Casemen picked up a pair of tallies in the fifth and then scored three more in the seventh to be assured of victory.

Jesse Croasdale was the losing hurler, he being hit quite freely, the Trenton team having a total of sixteen safe blows. Croasdale was also generous with his passes as he issued six. Jack Deafoff who pitched for the Packers also was hit with ease but was tighter in the pinches.

Of the winners' sixteen hits, four went to Risoldi who also counted four runs. On his fifth appearance at the plate, Risoldi reached base on an error. Even and Bentley each had a trio of safe blows. For Rohm and Haas, Johnny Dick connected for three safe blows in four tries.

Woodrow A. Rash, Edison, was granted a divorce from Florence I. Rash, Edison, on grounds of indignities to the person. They were married September 18, 1940, at Wilmington, Del.

Doris Smith, 338 Harrison street, Bristol, was granted a divorce from Samuel Harold Smith, 238 Garfield street, Bristol, on grounds of desertion. They were married August 31, 1940, at Bristol.

Ferdinand Lieke, Haycock township RD 3, was granted a divorce from Dorothy Lieke, 1233 Landingham avenue, Camden, N. J., on grounds of desertion. They were married June 11, 1921.

The opinion of Judge Harold Knight of the Montgomery county court, specially presiding in the case of Joseph Howe, Doylestown, against the Doylestown Fair Association, Doylestown Agricultural and Livestock Improvement Association and the Bucks County Fish, Game and Forestry Association, was handed down today.

Judge Knight directed that a rule to join additional defendants in the case—Charles W. Rowe, Earl D. Blair and J. Allen Gardy, all of Doylestown—be discharged at the cost of the plaintiff.

In the trial of the case in 1942, a jury rendered a verdict for $1625 in civil court to Howe, for injuries sustained at the fair grounds where Howe was accidentally shot by a bullet fired in the rifle range maintained by the defendants. After the trial, Howe filed a rule to show cause why the additional three persons should not be joined as defendants.

possible post-war demands for labor, while Earl Reinse, of the Kuhlman Company, is in charge of the survey for business and distribution outlets. C. A. Loux, superintendent of the Quakertown Water Company, will be in charge of the survey of agriculture. Dr. Harry Yutzler will be in charge of research, and J. S. Neidig, supervising principal of Quakertown schools, will be in charge of public relations. Robert Shafer will assist these men in making the survey in the northeastern section of this area.

Churchill Williams, the County C. E. D. vice-chairman, has resigned because his recent illness will not permit him to take on additional responsibilities. The Brewster crisis at Johnsville has stimulated the organization of C. E. D. committees in all county areas. J. M. Coles, vice-president of the Cold Spring Bleachery, has completed the organization for the Morrisville-Yardley area. Herbert Walker and Wallace Murfit expect to announce the organization for the Langhorne-Newtown area in a very short time.

Gordon Fromm, superintendent of Manhattan Soap Co., Bristol, plans to organize a committee for the Bristol-Bensalem area; Charles Beatty, the District Manager of the Bell Telephone Co., for the Doylestown area; and Frank O'Rourke, superintendent of the water company, the Sellersville-Perkasie area.

Allies Push Steadily On in Normandy Despite Resistance by The Germans

"I won't know the outcome of the battle until I return to that area in a few hours," he said, "but as I came back to this farm house I passed a steady stream of British armor moving up to the fight."

Headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, emphasizing the importance of aerial operations, said that the keynote of the campaign in France to date has been the successful landing of airborne formations.

Bomber and fighter plane formations added their weight to the continued success of the operations, lashing out constantly at enemy troop concentrations, strong-points and communications lines to disrupt German attempts to bring up reinforcements.

A heavy bombardment of German troop concentrations in a woods behind the beaches last night by British bombers was carried out in response to urgent appeals from ground forces, headquarters said.

Lanes across the English Channel were considerably widened to aid the movement of water-borne forces into the battle area. Minesweepers worked steadily to widen the Channel paths.

The Allied plan to maintain a constant flow of men and supplies into the battle sectors was aided by a welcome improvement in the weather which seriously hampered these operations at one point.

Headquarters revealed that the poor weather at one time yesterday became so bad that it stopped unloading on the beaches. The lost time, however, now has been regained by "super-human efforts."

Weather on the beaches now is definitely improving said a spokesman who expressed confidence that the Allies will be able to get on with the job according to schedule.

Some battleships which had been out in the Channel bombarding Nazi coastal positions returned with other craft to England to get more ammunition and now are back in operation.

Wounded being brought back to England are in very high spirits, headquarters said.

The related art class was represented by a model house, complete with furniture designed and made in high school. This was an outcome of a study of home planning.

In addition to the regular art work this year, the grade school classes decorated napkins for several holidays for Red Cross hospital trays, and made all the holiday party decorations for the United Service Club, Phila.

Election of officers and an interesting and informative talk on the preparation and freezing of food were the highlights at the meeting of the Upper Makefield Liberty Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Kirkbride, Makefield, last week.

Results of the election were as follows: President, Robert T. Ely; vice president, Lawrence M. Russell; secretary, Mrs. William C. Kirkbride, and treasurer, Otis Long. The talk on the preparation and freezing of food was given by the county home economics representative, Mrs. Mary Jacoby Fleetham, Doylestown, who emphasized the importance of speed in the preparation and freezing of all food.

Maxwell Cochran, 56, who was seriously injured in an automobile collision at the intersection of the Danboro-Carversville and the Gardenville-Point Pleasant highways, died on Monday in the Doylestown Emergency Hospital.

Cochran, a resident of Smith's Corner, near Point Pleasant, was injured when his car collided with a car driven by Johnson Stothoff, of Flemington, N. J., who was proceeding east on the Gardenville-Point Pleasant road. Cochran was driving north on the Danboro-Carversville road.

Stothoff will be charged with involuntary manslaughter.

Miss Edith Marie Deigendesch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Deigendesch, of Southampton, became the bride, a few days ago, of Boatswain's Mate 1/c Norman Heath Lobb, Jr., of the U. S. Coast Guard Reserve, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lobb, Sr., Oakmont, Delaware county.

The ceremony, performed in the presence of a few relatives and friends, took place in the chapel of Cathedral Church of the New Jerusalem, Bryn Athyn, with Rev. Karl R. Alden, pastor of the church, officiating.

Attempts were made by German E-boats to interfere with the continual arrival of allied supplies in Northern France.

In Italy, the Fifth Army advance continued at breath-taking speed. An official headquarters communique announced that Lieut. General Mark W. Clark's force has captured the Tyrrhenian seaport of Civitavecchia, some 40 miles northwest of liberated Rome.

As the Fifth Army troops raced north to take the Eternal City's main port, another column of the allied force reached the town of Bracciano on the shores of the lake of the same name. Still other troops fanned out north toward Civita Castellana.

The fall of Civitavecchia was announced after the German radio had conceded that the Fifth Army scored a serious breakthrough west and north of Rome, where the Nazis retreated hurriedly under assault by allied aircraft.

Further inland, in the mountains east of Rome, the British Eighth Army captured Subiaco and Mount Rotondo.

making Americans outstanding in the history and traditions of this country. What other nation can boast of such a Declaration of Independence, or overthrow of tyranny and establishment of a Constitution and form of government which have served so long and so well?

Rare indeed are such men as George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, Abraham Lincoln, and "Teddy" Roosevelt, yet America has had, and still has, many such great men.

An American is different because he has opportunities for advancement which no other people have. In no other country on the face of this globe could a person be born

so low and yet rise so high as did George Washington Carver. Born the son of a Negro slave, Carver, through his own efforts, became one of the most famous and well-liked scientists in the world. The income from his hundreds of patents goes to further the education and health of the people of his race. Another example of the heights to which an American may rise, is Andrew Carnegie. Carnegie came to this country at the age of sixteen, a Scotch immigrant. Although he started as a laborer in a steel mill, he climbed the ladder of success until he was a multi-millionaire and the benefactor of thousands of people through his gifts of libraries, hospitals and other philanthropic institutions.

A fourth cause for the uniqueness of us Americans is our educational and industrial system. In the U. S. A., every boy and girl is given the opportunity to obtain a high school education free, if he so desires it. In America, the vast majority of students do not have to leave school and work in some sweat shop. In fact, most states have child labor laws which prevent that very thing. As for industry, nearly every family in America has electric lights, a radio, and a car. These and many more advantages given us by our scientists and industrial geniuses, have naturally caused us to have a high degree of freedom from back-breaking labor and drudgery. This lack of drudgery had caused the American woman, in particular, to have a better education and more leisure time than is thought possible in other countries.

Then too, there are the countless small things which set an American apart. Washing machines, electric irons, kitchen gadgets galore, the thousands of clubs and fraternal organizations, the movies, the soda fountain—all contribute to our American way.

In conclusion, as I see it, an American is different because he is a composite of many nationalities, his history and traditions are unparalleled, his opportunities for education and self-betterment are unequalled, his religious and political freedom are the envy of the world, because he is a hard working, clean living person, and, above all, because he is an American!

22 of Bristol Flight
Attend Mobilization

The Bristol Flight sent 22 members to participate in the Civil Air Patrol Mobilization at Ambler, on Sunday. The convoy was in charge of PFC Stephen Cassidy, of Fleetwings, Inc., and Pvt. Andrew Budahazy, of Fallington, and reported to Captain Dom Rose, of Squadron 14, Philadelphia.

Lieut. Marty Green, C. O. of Bristol Flight, with PFC Dougherty as navigator, flew his Stinson from Allentown to Wings Field, where he flew his entire squad on orientation flights. Other commanders used Army "L" ships for their groups. In all there were about 500 CAP Cadets flown.

In speaking to the assembly

Lieut. Parsons, of the Army Air Forces, stated that recruiting for the Air Forces is again open as of June 1st, and the only way in is through the enlisted reserves. Any boy over 17 years and under 17 years, nine months, may take the mental screening test at Bristol high school on June 14th at 9:30 a. m., to be given by Lieut. Marty Green, leaving only the medical test to be taken at Philadelphia.

Among new applicants to Civil Air Patrol was Dr. Philip Tulin, Washington street, formerly a captain and medical officer in the U. S. Army Air Forces until January, 1944. Dr. Tulin will assume the duties of medical officer in this unit.

For next Monday's feature, Flight Sgt. James Patterson, Crofton, who has returned from England and has completed 45 missions as a radio operator on the bomber "ground trip," will speak to the group at Bristol high school. Sgt. Patterson has many decorations, including six oak leaf clusters and three silver stars.

Soroptimists of Bucks County Install Officers

DOYLESTOWN, June 8 — The newly elected officers of the Soroptimist Club of Bucks County were installed at the meeting, Tuesday evening, by Gale Zell, regional director of the North Atlantic District. Those installed are: Dorothy Kraft, president; Pearl H. Smith, vice-president; Agnes Maguire, recording secretary; Alice Watson, corresponding secretary; Marie V. Welsh, treasurer, and Verna McClary, director.

Verna McClary, retiring president, reported on the work of the club during the past year and a half, including the installation of the new club at Trenton, N. J. She presented the president's pin to the new president. The past president's pin was presented to Miss McClary by Miss Grace Chandler.

The guest speaker was Martha Service, executive secretary of the American Federation of Soroptimist

Clubs. She explained "Soroptimism" and its work for both the large and small clubs throughout the world. She advised that women in groups have a real contribution to make by bettering human relations. She stressed war service and the betterment of the individual club's community.

SERGEANT PAT OF RADIO PATROL

By EDDIE SULLIVAN and CHARLIE SCHMIDT

A COUPLE OF THUGS CAME HERE, LOOKING FOR MY HUSBAND... I THINK THEY'RE THE ONES WHO STOLE THE FUR COAT

DOES THE SERGEANT KNOW?

YES, HE KNOWS... SAY, YOU'RE QUITE INTERESTED IN THAT COP, AREN'T YOU?

Y-YEAH... I THINK HE'S GRAND

SO YOU TOOK IT UPON YOURSELF TO SPY ON ME... TO HELP HIM?

YEAH, I FIGURED IF I COULD HELP HIM, MAYBE I COULD GET TO FIRST BASE WITH HIM

I HOPE THE SERGEANT FINDS MY HUSBAND BEFORE THOSE CROOKS DO

DON'T WORRY... THE SERGEANT WILL FIND HIM

HERE'S MY HUSBAND. IF YOU WANT TO DO SOME DETECTIVE WORK FOR ME, TRY TO FIND HIM. HE'S IN THIS NEIGHBORHOOD

HE ISN'T. HE'S JUST AN IRRESPONSIBLE LUSH... IF YOU SEE HIM, JUST SMILE AT HIM AND HE'LL EAT OUT OF YOUR HAND

I DON'T THINK I SHOULD TAKE HIM TO THE POLICE STATION WHERE HE'D BE SAFE

I SUPPOSE SO, BUT I WOULD LIKE TO GET MY HANDS ON HIM, FIRST

I HOPE YOU DON'T GET MIXED UP WITH THOSE CROOKS... OH, THOSE LUGS DON'T FRIGHTEEN ME... IT'S THE REAL GENTS THAT SCARE ME

WELL, THANKS A LOT... I MADE A FOOL OF MYSELF, BUT YOU'VE BEEN SWELL

SAY NAZI TROOPS ARE LOW IN MORALE

Observers On Continent
Report Desertions Are
Increasing in Army

TRY TO BOLSTER IT

By William W. Wade
(U. S. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, June 8.—(INS)—The German soldier, the enemy whom American and British troops are facing across the English Channel, today has degenerated to a shadow of the arrogant, jack-booted Nazi who made Europe tremble in 1940 and 1941.

The German GI still may be a well-equipped, well-trained fighting man who can and will battle hard but, according to the latest reports from the continent, there is something missing—that spark of confidence known as morale and esprit de corps.

Some units of the Wehrmacht are good; some are not; and it will be an added job of Hitler's anti-invasion chiefs to juggle troop concentrations so that the best men can attempt to stave off the Allied blows.

Desertions, slackness and lack of hope have increased fourfold in the last two years among the Nazi garrisons from Norway to Yugoslavia. How seriously German leaders have taken the slump in morale can be seen by the fact that they had set up a special broadcasting transmitter to feed propaganda to the troops on the West Wall.

This radio, situated somewhere in France, has been pouring out exhortations on the theme that 1918 must not be repeated. As a backhanded morale-builder, it has been attempting to instill a dread of defeat into the Nazi supermen.

Significantly, this radio recently accused the Allies of a rumor campaign directed at German soldiers and threatened troops who passed on such rumors with severe punishment.

This propaganda campaign coincided with reports from Europe that morale in the Wehrmacht is low in certain sections of France. Desertions in the Marseilles area are said to be numerous.

Reflecting a serious shortage of German commissioned and non-commissioned officers, the German newspaper, Berliner Boersen Zeitung, recently published new regulations for "the intensified recruiting of young officers and NCOs to replace those killed on active service."

Swedish dispatches state that Germans already were talking about their "ersatz army" before the latest drive came into effect.

Probably the center of lowest morale of the Wehrmacht lies among the garrisons of Scandinavia. Those troops in Finland, an isolated seven divisions, face internment if the Finns successfully extricate themselves from the war.

Reports from Stockholm tell of hundreds of German deserters who reached neutral Sweden from Denmark, and it is safely assumed that for each soldier who escaped there are dozens more who failed and scores more who have not dared to try.

Deserters from the Norwegian garrison have been even more numerous. And according to the accounts, these fugitives of the Wehrmacht give of themselves, the rot of despair has settled heavily among the Nazi camps in the fjords.

One deserter, who reached Sweden recently, described the discipline of the comrades he left behind in this way:

"The ordinary German soldier has not the opportunity to express his mind except through his immediate superior officer. Therefore, the German soldier is easily suppressed and isolated. Discipline is still strong in the army but it is ingrained discipline.

"German soldiers are not heroes and, like most soldiers, they are afraid but they do not know what would happen if they did not obey their officers."

"They are bewildered by the setbacks in Russia. They take orders unquestionably and fight because they must. They fear for their families, who they know are being bombed in Germany but even that won't make them refuse to obey German army discipline."

"It was not until after Stalingrad that the German people and the German army for the first time realized that not all the things Hitler had promised could be fulfilled. It was also after Stalingrad that the German people first felt the power of the Gestapo at first hand. When I went home on leave after Stalingrad, I found my relatives and friends scared about talking too much."

Stalingrad reoccurs and reoccurs in the stories that seep out of the Third Reich as the turning point of morale, both civilian and military. Since then, defeat after defeat has hit the vaunted panzers and an unending cascade of bombs have shattered German cities.

No one quite knows what the blow from the West will do to the German will to resist.

One thing is certain. Allied commanders are not counting on any presents from the intangible thing called Nazi esprit. They are only hoping that it will be one of a large number of factors which will spell defeat for Germany.

"Come For Dessert" Parties Happy Solution Of Rationed Hospitality

Because rationing and shortages make generous mealtime hospitality a bit of a problem sometimes, it's becoming more and more usual to invite friends for coffee and dessert.

At this time of year, strawberry shortcake is a gala dessert that ranks tops with most people and makes minimum demands on the sugar bank. You'll win a merit rating as a thoughtful hostess, if you co-star your dessert party shortcake with decaffeinated coffee, so that everybody can relax tense nerves over friendly extra cups and cheering conversation. Remember that to bring out the rich coffee flavor you must percolate the decaffeinated variety from 15 to 18 minutes. You can serve the shortcake with a sauce of crushed, lightly sweetened berries, or you can achieve whipped cream for a topping by using a very simple recipe with thin cream and granulated gelatin.

There's an age-old controversy about the relative merits of biscuit crust and cake layers for the foundation of strawberry shortcake. Family taste will decide your choice. The cake variety takes a little more sugar. If you need only four servings, cut the two cake layers in half. Use two halves for the shortcake, and put the other two together with frosting for a half layer cake.

Mocha Froth

1 cup evaporated milk
½ teaspoon vanilla
Cinnamon
4 cups freshly made, hot decaffeinated coffee.

Chill evaporated milk thoroughly. Then whip rapidly until stiff. Add vanilla. Place in serving cups, filling half full. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Fill cups with coffee. Makes 8 servings.

How to Whip Light Cream

½ cup milk
1½ teaspoons (½ envelope) granulated gelatin
1 cup light cream
Few grains of salt

Add milk gradually to granulated gelatin in small bowl, mixing well. Heat over boiling water until gelatin is completely dissolved, stirring constantly. Remove from boiling water, add cream and salt, and mix. Place in bowl of ice and water and whip immediately with rotary egg beater 5 to 7 minutes, or until mixture begins to hold shape around side of bowl. Remove from ice water. Stir gently with spoon until smooth. Serve.

This whipped cream may be stored in refrigerator until needed. Mix thoroughly before using.

Orange Honey Bread

2 tablespoons shortening
1 cup honey
1 egg
1½ tablespoons grated orange peel
2½ cups sifted flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
¼ cup orange juice
¾ cup chopped nuts

Cream shortening and honey together thoroughly. Add well beaten egg and grated orange peel. Sift flour with baking powder, soda and salt. Add the flour mixture to the creamed mixture alternately with the orange juice. Add the nuts. Bake in greased loaf pan in moderate oven (325 degrees, F.) for 70 minutes. This makes an ideal school lunch when filled with cream cheese and orange marmalade.

KNOW YOUR STATE

Pennsylvania was a pioneer in the development of the American railroad. The first train ever drawn by a steam locomotive in the western hemisphere ran between Carlisle and Honesdale on the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company's railroad in 1829. Though this historic trip was never repeated, since the imported locomotive which drew that train proved too heavy for the light rails which had been laid along the route, it was, in fact, the beginning of the American railroad industry.

Only a few years before this historical trip John Stevens was granted, in 1825, a charter for the construction of a railroad from Philadelphia to Columbia, Pennsylvania. So great was the public ignorance as to this method of transportation that a reader of a Pennsylvania newspaper wrote a letter to the editor inquiring, "What is a railroad?" and the editor, at a loss himself, could only reply, "Perhaps some other correspondent can tell."

In the 129 years since the publication of this historic inquiry, the steam and electric railroads of this Commonwealth have developed to a main track length of over 12,000 miles and transport annually in normal times more than 45,000,000 people and 150,000,000 tons of freight. Only two states in the Union exceed the Keystone State in the railroad density as measured by the miles per hundred square miles of territory, and only two exceed her in total mileage of track.

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

"Poor Pierre!" murmured Ellen. "I just had a premonition something had happened to him when Inspector Grange said he was still missing! Haven't you any idea who's behind these terrible murders?"

"Yes, dear, but I'll tell you in the morning."

"Well I'm certainly glad to hear that Roger is recovering. It certainly was a shock to find his body!"

Ellen glanced at the recumbent form on the couch. "Incidentally, Argus," she said, "What are you going to do about Mabel?"

"I'll ship her back in the morning. Martinelli's probably received my ultimatum about an exchange of hostages and is scouring the countryside trying to find you. So I won't throw Mabel out the window as I threatened. It ought to teach him a lesson. And now, I think you ought to get some rest."

"I came here because I was just too scared to go home—and I wanted to talk to you."

"Boy, am I glad you did! You and Mabel take my bed."

Argus picked up Mabel's inert form with a grunt as pain stabbed his wounded shoulder. He trudged into the adjoining room and deposited the body on the bed.

"You see what happens to little girls who drink too much," he said. He removed Mabel's shoes. "Let this be a lesson to you, Miss Curtis, never to—" Ellen returned with some pajamas.

Argus grinned as Ellen pushed him to the doorway.

Argus awakened Ellen at ten the following morning with a kiss. He was shaved and dressed.

"You and Mabel have some breakfast and meet me at Syria's penthouse at 11:15—will you darling?" he whispered. Ellen nodded sleepily. Just as he was tiptoeing out of the room, Mabel stirred and opened one eye tentatively. She quickly closed it again when she saw Argus and moaned.

"What have I done? Dancer will kill both of us! Oh-h-h-h!" She lifted her arm to her head. "It's splitting!"

"I know how you feel," consoled Argus. He brought her a tall glass of water and dropped a couple of fizz tablets in it.

"This may help," he said, taking it around to her side of the bed. She propped herself up on one elbow and drank. Then, for the first time, she saw Ellen.

"Hey!" she cried. "What goes on here?"

"Don't mind him," cautioned Ellen. "He's just a amateur bigamist. But we won't quarrel over him, will we?"

"Mabel," said Argus, "this is Ellen Curtis. She's been chaperoning you ever since you, passed out last night, so you don't have to worry about Dancer." The detective turned to leave. "And now, my lovely ladies," he cheer-oed, "I have some work to do before the last round-up. I'll see you both later." The phone rang. Argus picked it up.

"McGillieuddy's Maternity Ward," he declared.

"Sorry," said a man's voice on the other end. "I must have the wrong number. I wanted Mr. Argus Steele."

Argus laughed. "Go ahead! This is Steele speaking!"

"Oh, Mr. Steele, this is Sergeant O'Brien at police headquarters. Inspector Grange wanted me to call you. He had to go out to Jersey but he said he'd be back in time to meet you at Miss Verne's penthouse at eleven. We examined those sweepings we found in Redbeard's rooming house."

"We found some small fragments of glass, a couple of short reddish hairs and—"

"Any tobacco?"

"No, sir."

"All right. Thank you, Sergeant."

Argus hung up. "Well, I'm really off this time," he said. "Adios!"

Detective Steele paid one call on a jeweler on Madison Avenue before going to Syria's penthouse.

According to their agreement, the Inspector had replaced the murder machine exactly as it had been the night of the shooting. Argus walked over to the telephone. He dialed 7-1-1 and then held the receiver to his ear a moment until he heard a clicking sound. Then quickly he dialed the number 5 and immediately hung up the receiver. The phone commenced to ring, but he paid no attention to it.

Argus then took a .38 caliber pistol cartridge from his pocket and, removing the cover of the air-conditioning machine unit, he inserted the shell into the top aperture of the chamber and cocked the gun. He slackened the twine leading from the trigger to the shaft of the fan-blower, then replaced the top of the air-conditioning device, without screwing it back in place.

He checked the wire connection between the telephone bell box and the self starter of the air-conditioner. The phone rang and rang, but he continued to ignore it.

The detective sat down in a comfortable upholstered chair and lit a cigarette, as he mapped out a plan of procedure.

"B-rrr—rrr—b-rrr—rrr," rang the telephone, "B-rrr—rrr." It fell on deaf ears. In a few minutes the door buzzer sounded. Argus went to the door. Grange was there with a dozen people. Angry voices echoed down the hall.

"Hello, Inspector," smiled Argus. "I see you have your whole brood with you."

"Yeah, and here's the ugliest duck of them all," Grange said, unlocking the handcuff which fastened his wrist to Martinelli's. "Git in there, punk!" He gave Dancer a shove. "And don't let me hear any more squawks out of you."

In the wake of Grange and Martinelli, Argus held the door open while Bill Carstairs and his father entered, followed by Dorry and Roger Flagg. Roger smiled at Argus. He was leaning on the arm of a hospital interne for support. Several police officers brought up the rear of the procession. Dancer scowled at Argus.

Grange leaned over and whispered in the detective's ear: "We found that place in the country. The wire and the string came from there. But guess who it belonged to?"

"Where's that dame?" Martinelli interrupted roughly.

"What dame?" Argus asked.

"You know what dame I mean—Mabel—that's what dame. Where is she?" Dancer looked around the room.

"Don't you want to know about that place in the country?" Grange persisted. "Keep your shirt on, Dancer. Mabel's in good hands. She'll be here in a few minutes with Miss Curtis. She spent the night with her last night."

"Oh yeah?" sneered Martinelli. "I hold a different story."

The other occupants of the room stared at Argus.

"Steele, the phone is ringing," said Grange. "Shall I see who it is?"

"No, never mind, Inspector. Let it ring." Argus turned to the crowd. "Now if you folks will all just find yourselves comfortable chairs—"

Carstairs Sr. walked up to Argus. "What's the idea of all this poppycock?" he demanded. "It's an outrage!"

"You bet it is," said Dancer. "I know my constitutional rights, see? And if you ain't goin' to answer that phone, I'm goin' to and then call my lawyer. You can't get away wit' nuttin' like this!"

"B-rrr—rrr—b-rrr—rrr—b-rrr—" the phone kept on.

"For Pete's sake, somebody answer that phone," urged Carstairs, Jr.

"Smatter?" Argus asked. "Got the jitters? I don't want any of you to touch that phone, yet." He paused. "I suppose you all know why you're here."

"I don't know why any of us were made to come here," Dorry snarled in a defiant voice. "I thought there was a law against—"

"Very well, Dorry," interrupted Argus. "I'll explain: Practically all of you might have had one reason or another, for wanting to get rid of Syria Verne, Cynthia Lane and—"

"He paused," Pierre Sturgis, A' one time or another, during the investigation of the last few days, each one of you has been suspected individually of being the potential murderer." He looked from one face to another.

"B-rrr—b-rrr—b-rrr—" the phone was relentless.

"But, needless to say," Argus continued, "only one of you actually committed the crimes. Isn't that right, Mr. Flagg?"

The model agent looked startled.

"Why, yes, I suppose so," he replied.

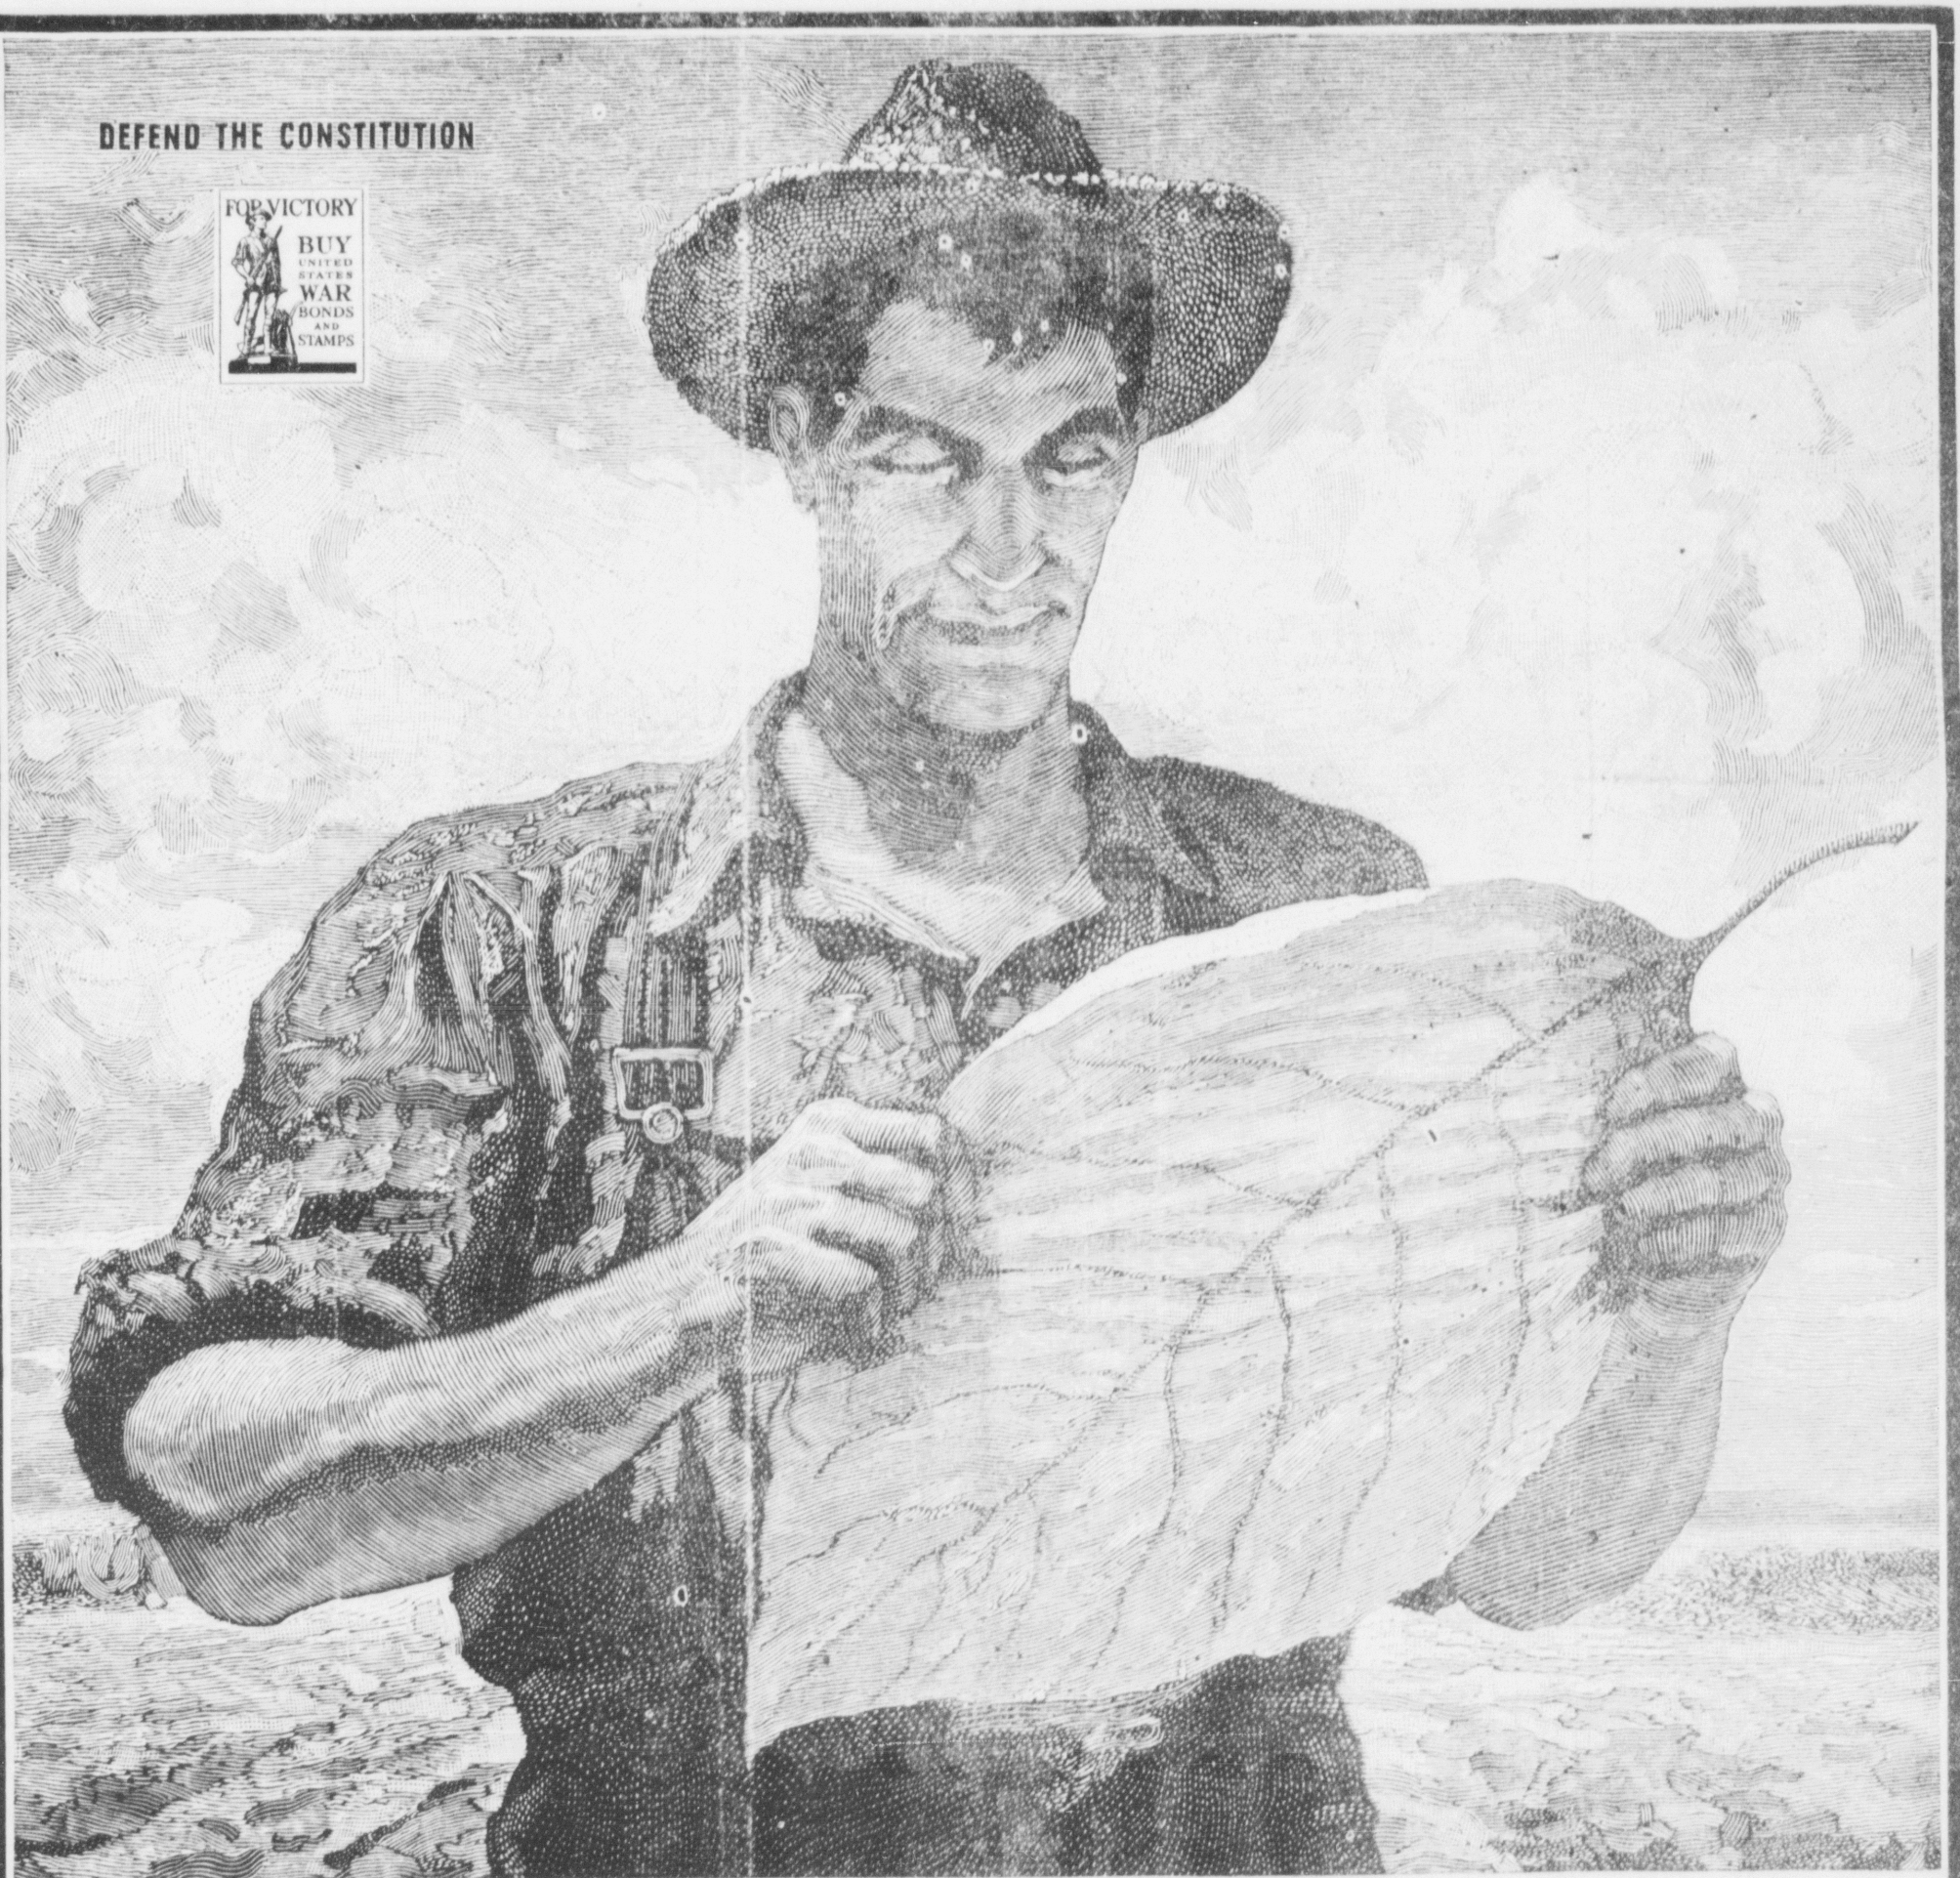

"Now, in answer to Dorry Carstairs' protest and complaint," Argus continued, "I think it's only fair for me to tell you briefly a couple of reasons why each of you came under suspicion of complicity in these murders."

THE CAPITOL WHIRL

A Digest of Things Political Occurring At Harrisburg

By International News Service

HARRISBURG, June 8.—(INS)—Governors attending the 36th annual conference at Hershey were showered with gifts from Gov. Edward Martin that were donated by Pennsylvania businessmen. The gifts included a pen and pencil desk set on a 8x12 base of polished anthracite coal reportedly costing $50 each. Other gifts presented to each Governor included two white wooden blankets, a gallon of Somerset County maple syrup, polished slate book ends, aluminum ash trays and match holders, a gavel made from the wood of Independence Hall, desk ornaments, glass centerpieces and a copper plaque of Abraham Lincoln cast before the metal shortage.

The Pennsylvania State Police did an excellent job of keeping the strings of cars moving between Harrisburg and Hershey and on a side trip to Indianopolis Gap. Weeks before the conference opened, Col. C. M. Wilhelm, State Police Commissioner, surveyed the routes to assure prompt passage of the cars. When the conference opened, more than 100 State Police were on duty along the highways. A teletypewriter was installed in the Hershey Hotel connected with the statewide police network to give officials up-to-the-minute traffic and weather information.

Capitol Hill newspapermen knew for more than 10 days that Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, and Admiral Ernest J. King, Commander of Naval Operations and the U. S. Fleet, would attend the Governor's Conference but were pledged to secrecy. Governor Martin disclosed they would attend the meeting in an "off the record" statement and emphasized that their security depended upon pre-Conference secrecy. Newspapermen were barred from their meetings with the Governors and while the chief executives did not discuss the addresses, they admitted they were impressed with the two ranking officers. One Governor predicted Marshall would be an ideal Presidential candidate after the war. So far removed from politics, however, are Marshall and King that no one was able to remember the political affiliations of the two men.

Governor Martin's military training served him well in planning the conference. Everything moved with clock-like precision according to a time table prepared by the Governor and his aides. Realizing the difficulty of getting the Governors and their official parties to appear promptly for the State banquet Monday because they were scattered through the spacious Hershey Hotel, the Governor neatly solved the problem by having an Army bugler sound mess call in the lobby. Within five minutes the dining room was beginning to fill. When the car carrying Florida's Governor, Spessard L. Holland had a tire blow out, the chief executive and his party were whisked into another automobile and a station wagon pulled alongside the disabled car and helped the driver change tires. Within 10 minutes the Florida Governor's car was underway.

NEW AIR FORCE CHIEF

HEADQUARTERS, PANAMA CANAL.—(INS)—Brig. Gen. Edgar P. Sorensen of Gellville, Minn., a veteran of 26 years service with the Air Corps, has assumed command of the Sixth Air Force, succeeding Brig. Gen. Ralph H. Wooten, who is taking over a new command. The new chief is no stranger to the area, having joined the headquarters staff of General Wooten in February, 1943, and having served successfully as chief of the Sixth Air Force service command and chief of staff of the Sixth Air Force. More recently he was on duty with the Caribbean Defense Command under Lieut. Gen. George H. Brett.

SWEET AND LOW

NEW YORK.—(INS)—The most cheerful subway guard in New York City is on duty at Grand Central Station. During the rush hours, when the dash for trains resembles a stampede, the guard, a muscled Negro, uses the lullaby technique. He croons, "Just take your time," he chants, sweet and low. "Plenty—plenty or time. Just stand in the doorway and enjoy yourselves." Passengers grin and discover their neighbors doing the same. They stop pushing, become polite.

I love the high style of various "Scotty" models, and now, at such a reduced price, they'll go like hot cakes. You can buy them in black patent and black or tan calfskin. There are heel heights to suit all comers. Pumps, ties, etc. "Scotties" are well made and well worth your precious ration stamps. Have a look around this whole first floor Shoe Dept. while you're about it. Snellenburg keeps several other reliable makes of shoes, some of them exclusive with this reliable store.

CLEVER RAINCOATS, the kind that give a woman that military "glamour," can now be had in the Snellenburg Raincoat Dept. (2nd fl.) for only $15. The model I have in mind is a swanky "trench." Double-breasted, and with those convenient side-opening pockets. There's a wide belt of the splendid material of which the coat is made. Comes in natural color, and in sizes 12 to 20. Can be worn the year round. Buy it and pray for rain!

DON'T FORGET DAD! He likes a whole drawerful of shirts and doesn't always think to buy ahead for himself. Just now the Men's Furnishings Dept. on the first floor of the Snellenburg Store is showing several groups that will suit dad to a "T." A wonderful "buy" is any one of the samples and irregulars of the sport shirts, at the low price of $1.65. Half-sleeve models with convertible collars and big pockets in a rare array of colors and fabrics. Small, medium and large sizes—and only $1.65 each!

SHEETS A-PLenty for summer are a necessity for anyone having overnight guests. Here is an opportunity to buy some extra firm and heavy ones with that desirable soft finish. They are fine textured and heavenly white, measure 81x99 inches, and are priced at only $1.74 each. He'll love the Snellenburg Bed Linens Dept. (2nd fl.) This is a department which has many other household conveniences which are sometimes duration-scarce. They include twin and full sized mattress covers, ironing-board sets, non-allergic pillowcases and the like! Look about the department and make a list for present or future shopping! It will pay.

PRETTY SUMMER LINGERIE has been all too scarce, but the Lingerie Dept. on the Snellenburg 2nd floor has a charming array of nighties and slips at only $1.79 each. There are cotton nighties, floral-printed, in several sweet styles. Marvelously cool. They come in sizes 32 to 38. A new group of nicely made rayon crepe and satin slips is offered, also at $1.79. They come either tailored or lace trimmed, and are cut for lying smooth under summer frocks. Sizes 32 to 40. Both slips and nighties are a definite "buy."

CALIFORNIA COTTONS, such as are found in the Snellenburg Sun Shop (2nd fl.), have a swish and a dash hard to duplicate. The simplest of Sun Shop things are definitely smart and have that quality of doing something for one. I'd like you to try on one of the new $6.95 California play suits. They come in gorgeous floral and imaginative prints, bright colors on gleaming white backgrounds. They are one-piece and have inset belts, shirt-waist tops, button-front skirts—very, very smart. Sizes 12 to 18.

P.S. Shop at this friendly store—Market from 11th to 12th, thru to 1125-29 Chestnut St., Phila.; order by mail or phone free (5c, 10c and 15c out-of-town calls only). Penna. number Enterprise 10160. New Jersey WX 1150. (Mention me!)

8TH AIR FORCE EYES BIG CITIES OF JAPAN

Jimmy Doolittle's Fliers
Await Day They Can Hit
Little Brown Men

HAVE EYES ON TOKYO

By John W. Jarrell
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE 8TH U. S. AIR FORCE, England, June 8.—(INS)—Japanese officers, downing their hot saki wine in Tokyo's swank Imperial Hotel, or strolling down the capital's Ginza, might just as well know right now: the hardest-hitting airforce in the world is looking forward to leveling industrial Japan to the ground.

Because the 8th U. S. Air Force, which has reduced so many German industrial targets to the merest rubble, expects—and hopes—to throw its might against the Nipponese empire, and in the not too distant future, too.

Naturally, the sprawling city of Tokyo itself plays an important part in those expectations, along with Kobe, Osaka, Nagasaki and other seats of the Pacific enemy's war industry.

Nor is there any comfort for Japan's war lords in contemplation of the 8th Air Force's commander, Lieut. Gen. James Doolittle. For it was Jimmy Doolittle who, on April 18, 1942, led his courageous band of B-25 fliers from an American aircraft carrier to attack Tokyo and other Japanese targets in one of the most sensational exploits of this world war.

It is no secret that high-ranking officers of the Eighth Air Force are watching developments in the Pacific carefully, studying their maps in anticipation of the day when it is decided their duties in the ETO have been completed.

Then the Eighth hopes to give Tokyo a taste of what Berlin has felt.

That would mean that Tokyo would be showered with nearly 3,000 tons of high explosive and incendiary bombs at a crack.

It would make that 1942 raid by Doolittle's men, which sent all Japan into a panic, appear to be a pink tea affair.

Officers of the Eighth Air Force have no idea where they will go, if they are sent against the Japs. But there is much speculation that eventually they may wind up in China, a logical spot for carrying out operations against Japan proper, to augment Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's small—but exceedingly tough—Fourteenth U. S. Air Force, which shoots down Jap planes at a ratio of 14 for one.

Obviously, a giant airforce like

the Eighth could not operate from China, with anything like its potential power, so long as the only means of getting supplies—which means gasoline and bombs—into Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's embattled country is by airplane over the Himalaya mountains.

But Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's Chinese and American forces are today battling in northern Burma to clear a path for U. S. engineers constructing the new Ledo road, designed to connect somewhere with the old Burma road. And the Chinese themselves have crossed the Salween river in force in an attempt to link up with "Vinegar Joe's" jungle-wise troops.

Too, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz has announced that eventually there must be an amphibious landing on China's east coast, to open a supply route by sea.

So the Eighth Air Force is able to see ahead to the day when China may be supplied by land or water.

Only recently, Tokyo—which gets the purple jitters at the very thought of a bombing of Nippon—reported that Jap planes had raided a new American airfield at Suichang, in the northern part of Kiangsi province.

Suichang is only 1,300 miles from Tokyo, and only 800 miles from Nagasaki, the center of Japan's industrial region. It lies but 400 miles from Formosa and 1,000 miles from Manila.

The Japs declared the base was second only to Kunning in China.

One can imagine what the powerful Eighth Air Force could do to Japan from a base that close to the enemy's mainland.

For arrogant little Nipponese officers, strutting through Tokyo with their short swords clanking at their sides, it is a horrifying picture. What has been done to Berlin and Hamburg obviously is in store for Tokyo.

CAST IRON ITEMS SHOULD BE WELL SEASONED FOR USE

By Mrs. Mary Jacoby Fleetham

(Home Economics Representative)

Cast iron cooking ware is on the market in larger quantities this spring. The iron released last fall to manufacturers of cooking utensils by the War Production Board is now appearing on retail shelves as skillets, griddles, kettles and dutch ovens.

Before the war, most cast iron cooking ware was seasoned at the factory, so was ready to use as soon as it was washed. The shortage of labor today, however, is bringing most iron utensils to market unseasoned, so this is a job that must be done in the home kitchen. Iron utensils that are not seasoned dis-colored foods and cause them to stick to the metal. To season new cast iron kettles or pans rub the inside with some unsalted fat such as vegetable oil, suet or lard. Then heat the utensil several hours over low heat on top of the stove or in the oven. Rub off the fat with absorbent paper or a dry clean cloth, and let the utensil cool. Do not wash. Repeat the treatment the following day. For the first few times cook only fresh meat or bread in the utensil, and clean by rubbing with paper or cloth, not with soap and water. When the fat has worked in thoroughly, the metal is seasoned and can be washed or not, as the cook prefers. Whenever it is to be stored, however, an iron utensil should be coated with unsalted fat and left uncovered to prevent rusting.

Cast iron discolors any acid food cooked in it but this discoloration is harmless. Tomatoes, for example, which have turned brownish from cooking in an iron pan are wholesome, though not as attractive in color and flavor, but may have extra iron in a form which the body can use.

NORTHERN HOSPITALITY

NEW YORK.—(INS)—Mrs. John Gerard Boehling came to New York from Richmond, Va., to receive a $1,000 platinum brooch set with diamond chips, from the police. She found the pin last February on Fifth Avenue and turned it in. She was told that if no one claimed the brooch in three months it was hers. The police made quite a ceremony of presenting the pin to the southern woman and she told them all that New York was a very pleasant place to visit.

STUDENTS HONOR NUN

PITTSBURGH.—(INS)—Hundreds of grateful students and former pupils of Depaul Institute for the Deaf, Pittsburgh, recently paid tribute to a nun whose efforts have made their lives happier and more useful. They attended a solemn high mass in the institute's chapel marking the golden jubilee of Sister Marie Antonia McLinden as a member of the Sisters of Charity. She has helped to rehabilitate more than 1,500 deafened boys and girls through special education.

PARKER IS HAILED AS GREAT RUNNER

By Lawton Carter
N. S. Sports Editor
NEW YORK, June 8.—(INS)—The greatest school boy runner since the hey-day of Jesse Owens—and possibly the best ever—will be unveiled during the National A. A. U. track and field championships in New York on June 17-18. His name is Charley Parker, of San Antonio, Tex., who was slated to make his bid on the big time last year, when, just two weeks before the Nationals, he was stricken with appendicitis.

Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., a man generally known as Mr. Track and Field, firmly believes that the tall and gangly young Texan stands a chance of wiping out all the dash marks ever written into the books.

Clyde Littlefield, University of Texas track and field coach, agrees with Ferris, or, in fact, gave Ferris the idea in the first place by pointing out what Parker has done in southwestern meets.

The marks that Parker will shoot at here are the 100 meters and the 200 meters. Owens holds the world standards of 16.2 and 20.3. In fact, as a schoolboy the 17-year-old Parker already has bettered Owens' best school boy performance for the 200 yards, which he negotiated in 26.6.

He is quite definitely the outstanding individual currently in the track and field business and a serious-minded youngster, according to Ferris, who thinks Parker is likely to prove a sensation in the national championships. He is going to run in both the senior and the junior events.

Parker has run in 14 races this season and set nine new records of one kind and another besides tying two others. He is undefeated since 1941. He has won 49 dashes without a defeat, exclusive of trial heats in which he also has always been the victor.

Aside from his running, the new meteor in track and field is an A-1 student and president of the Jefferson High School student council at San Antonio. He tried to fit himself into V-5 or V-12 programs, but was rejected because of color blindness. He still expects to get into the Army one way or another, then after the war will study law at the University of Texas.

Parker is 5 feet 9½ inches tall and weighs 149 pounds. He has a long stride and what coaches call absolutely flawless natural form. They figure he is a cinch to break the longer dash records and at least a potential shatterer of the shorter dash marks.

"This young fellow really looks like the greatest thing that has come along in years," Ferris said today, "and it will be interesting to watch him go in our Nationals after all this time since there has been a sprinter of such class around."

DEFENSIVE DEMON By Jack Sords

In that has, until this year, been part of the circus musical program. The "umpah" in the band is not there.

The circus will remain in Philadelphia until June 17th.

This annoying element of all former circus music has been emphatically removed, by the new Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey all-brass Wonder Band through revolutionary instrumentation by the show's musical director, Bert Knapp. Mr. Knapp, collaborating with Robert Ringling, who staged the 1944 edition of the circus, has created a new school of circus music which entirely deletes the boring "umpah, umpah."

To do this effectively was no easy task for Mr. Ringling and Mr. Knapp, who worked together on the problem for several years. It meant radical changes in the band itself before they came through with the greatest musical achievement in the history of the circus.

The new formula calls for an all-brass band, first ever with The Greatest Show on Earth, and replaces the wood-winds with a section of the rare Bayreuth tubas, thus bringing out richer beauty of tone, even with a band greater in size and scope than any ever heard under canvas.

Performances of the huge circus are given at 2:15 and 8:15. To permit leisurely inspection of the mammoth new menagerie, the doors are open at one and seven.
